FEAR BOMB IN WALLY'S GIFTS

SHIPS CRASH IN FOG OFF TIP OF CAPE

Groping their way through thick fog, the 6000-ton Italian freighter Maria and the Boston-bound coal schooner Edward R. Smith collided head-on today at the eastern end of Cape Cod Canal, near Sandwich.

While no one was injured, the jib boom of the three-masted schooner was torn away, her bow stove in and her seams sprung. The Maria immediately put a line aboard, reversed her course and started towing the disabled ship to Boston.

Captain Iviani of the Maria radioed the report of the crash to coast guard headquarters at Boston and requested that the Italian consul be notified. He said his own ship was slightly damaged on the starboard side.

SAILED LAST NIGHT

The Maria, whose home port is Trieste, sailed out of Boston last night with a cargo of mixed freight destined for Philadelphia, Baltimore and points south. She is an oil-burning single-screw motorship.

The schooner, built in Maine in 1911, has only a tenth of the tonnage of the Maria. It is owned by the Edward M. Baird company of New York and frequently plied between there and Boston. She carries a crew of seven.

The Maria was just outside the entrance of the canal and proceeding very slowly, according to reports, when the schooner suddenly loomed.

SCHOONER LEAKING

Before the Maria's 600-horsepower engines could halt her way, the bowsprit of the schooner raked her starboard side and the Smith's jib boom was carried away.

Captain Iviani put off a small boat and discovered that the schooner was leaking, so he decided to take her in tow for the 45-mile trip to Boston.

Sextuplets' Dad A Nervous Gander

Assinippi, May 6 (AP)—"Sextuplets" born in the yard on the Moses Brown propety have made the father a nervous wreck.

The six balls of yellow fluff were hatched by a goose.

The proud gander-father, which stood by honking during the four weeks the mother spent on the nest, was obviously suffering from a sore throat and on the verge of collapse when the youngsters arrived. Latest reports indicated he would live. Mother and offspring also were doing well.

400 Feet Up, Zep Over Boston

Less than 400 feet above Boston's streets, the huge German dirigible Hindenburg flew over the Hub a half hour before noon today, more than eight hours behind schedule on her first 1937 trip from Germany to the United States.

Swirls of fog and mist curled around the big silver ship as she ground on, at slow speed, through the murk, on a course that took her practically down Federal street, over the South Station and south—to be lost in fog less than a mile distant.

FEW GET CLEAR VIEW

When first sighted in Boston, shortly after 11:30 a. m., the dirigible appeared to be temporarily lost. She came out of the fog, headed north, but on reaching Boston Airport she swung to the west, and almost immediately south to carry her again toward Lakehurst, N.J., her American station.

Because of the heavy weather, and her sudden appearance and disappearance, comparatively few persons saw the German dirigible pass over, and few of those saw her clearly.

For a brief few minutes, however, from the roof of the Boston Evening American building, in Winthrop square, she was clearly visible at a point only a few hundred feet away, and her number—D-L2129—and her two red swastikas, in white circles on red backgrounds, loomed as large as outdoor advertising signs close up.

Then the dirigible poked into more mist as she headed over the

RASKOB PAID NO 1930 U. S. INCOME TAX

New York, May 6 (AP)—John J. Raskob, multimillionaire business associate of Pierre S. du Pont, and former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, paid no income tax in 1930.

This fact was brought out today in the income tax case against the two industrialists.

Mason B. Leming, special counsel for the Internal Revenue Bureau and chief of government counsel in the litigation to collect approximately $1,800,000 from the two industrialists for alleged deficiency in their 1929 tax, introduced Raskob's returns for 1930 into evidence at the hearing before Richard Disney, member of the U. S. Board of Tax Commissioners.

$789,181 INCOME

Colonel Joseph Hartfield, Raskob's attorney, objected to making public the return and urged Commissioner Disney to impound it.

After a brief hearing in the commissioner's chambers in the old federal building, Disney allowed newspapermen to see the return, and said:

"The public has a legitimate right to news. I am not going to bar you from seeing the return."

Raskob listed a total income for 1930 of $799,181.94, against which were deductions of $867,263.54.

He gave his occupation for that year as vice-president of E. I. du Pont De Nemours and listed a salary from this company of $10,000. He also listed a salary from General Motors—a corporation in which he has been interested for some years with the du Pont family—of $10,000 and a total of $4,115.56 in director's fees.

STOCK LOSS SHOWN

The return was brought into the case—which is now in its fourth day and which promises to go on through most of next week—by Leming in developing the second of a series of transactions between duPont and Raskob following the Wall Street panic in October, 1929, by which the two financiers in cross-sales established losses of approximately $7,000,000 which they deducted from their 1929 returns.

Although the 1930 return, when broken down, showed the profits taken by Raskob on the December 26 cross-sale and on the transaction involving the 27,000 shares of Warner Brothers stock, it showed a net loss for the year in stock transactions approximately $448,900.

BIG INTEREST ITEM

In addition to the total of $24,115.56 on salaries and directors' fees, the return showed $387,709 in interest on bank deposits, $799,416 dividends on stocks and $36,867 interest on bonds.

The loss of $448,900 was balanced off against these.

In computing his deductions of $867,263.54, Raskob listed interest paid out at $595,444 and taxes paid at approximately $271,800. Included in the taxes was an item of $269,725.64 paid to the State of Delaware.

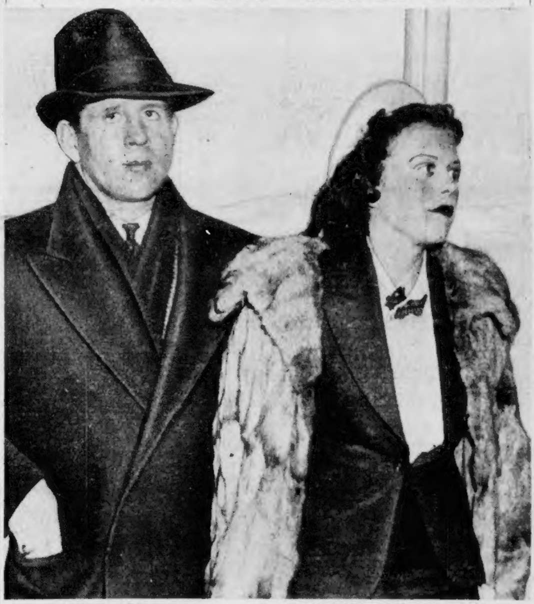
Historic Shot Seen 'Round the World



RUDY VALLEE MRS. EVELYN GRESHAM JOHNSTON

The picture that caused the trouble. It was taken by a Boston photographer at a Boston theater. The man is Rudy Vallee, crooner and band leader, now in London planning to play coronation season music. The woman is Mrs. Evelyn Gresham Johnston. Rudy, displeased, clashed with the photographer. He was found guilty of assault. Now from Chattanooga, Tenn., comes report that the woman's husband W. R. Johnston, radio announcer, is suing for divorce.

Girl Vallee Fought For Sued by Hubby

Rudy Vallee's fistic foray with a Boston newspaper photographer not so long ago had its repercussions today.

Down in Chattanooga, Tenn., one W. R. Johnston, Jr., a radio announcer, filed a divorce action against one Evelyn Gresham Johnston, beauteous New York showgirl and his wife.

Although dark secrecy surrounded the identity of the glamorous lady whom Vallee attempted to protect from the leering lens of the cameraman that night of April 6—it was no secret to Johnston of Chattanooga after he saw the picture in the paper.

To pour acid in the open wound, Johnston told the court, in filing his divorce action, it was his painful duty to broadcast the news of the court action brought by Photographer Ben FitzGerald against Vallee for assault and battery.

Johnston wound up his broadcast of the news item stating:

"It might interest the radio audience to know that Miss Gresham is married to your announcer."

Fitzgerald hailed Vallee and Harry Paul, representative of the crooner, into court on assault charges. Rudy was found guilty and the charge placed on file. Paul was found guilty and fined $50. He appealed.

Another jolt suffered by the crooner came in the form of a suit for divorce filed by blonde Judy Starr, one of the singers on his radio hour, seeking to sever the marital bonds that tied her to John Walton Martin of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Expelled by Nazis, Woman Doctor Dies in Leap

New York, May 6 (INS)—Despairing she would ever again pick up the brilliant medical career which was halted when she was cast out of Germany, Dr. Emma Lublinsky, a handsome blonde woman of 36, plunged to earth today from the fourth floor of the Clara De Hirch Women's Club.

She left two notes—one to her new-found friends here in New York, thanking them for befriending and helping her.

The other, sealed, was addressed to her husband, an architect, who was also thrown out of Germany by the Nazis and who is now in France.

Dr. Lublinsky arrived in Boston last November from Germany, where she was expelled for having Jewish blood.

Two weeks ago, she came to New York and was studying English so that she could take an examination that would allow her to set up her medical practice.

ALL PARCELS CAREFULLY CHECKED

Monts, France, May 6 (AP)—Special precautions were taken today to safeguard the Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield Simpson from the possibility of receiving a bomb disguised as a wedding gift.

Police watched all packages addressed to the Chateau De Cande where Windsor and his bride-to-be are reunited, and none was to be delivered of which Mrs. Simpson was not sure.

She inspects them carefuly and if the sender's return address is not familiar she instructs that they be returned unopened.

Windsor's narrowing waist line in the five months of his athletic exile in Austria created two problems for the household, bustling with activity for the still secret—or undecided—day when Edward will marry the woman for whom he gave up an empire.

Sources close to the former sovereign said he was contemplating a quick shopping trip to Paris to replenish his wardrobe. His newly-

Duke's Bridal May 19 Is Report

Monts, France, May 6 (INS)—The Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Simpson may be married a week after the coronation of George VI, according to seemingly reliable information today.

The coronation of the duke's brother will take place in London May 12. Thus, the duke and Mrs. Simpson may wed on the following Wednesday, May 19.

According to this version, the wedding may take place at the chateau, where they are now staying as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bedaux. Mayor Mercier of Monts might perform the civil ceremony, and there is a possibility there may be a religious ceremony the same day or a few days later.

The wedding, according to the report, will not be a simple, private ceremony, but will be a dignified occasion.

EDWARD OUSTED, PEER DECLARES

BRITAIN'S OPPOSITION WHIP AIDS JEWISH DRIVE HERE

Right Honorable Lord Marley, British Laborite, chief opposition whip in the House of Lords, sees Mrs. Wallis Simpson as merely a "weapon" of the government to force the abdication of the Duke of Windsor because of Edward's "too great interest" in the working classes.

In Boston today, where he addressed workers of the United Jewish campaign of Greater Boston at the Chamber of Commerce Building, the soldier-statesman discussed many topics of world interest.

He said:

"Because Mrs. Wallis Simpson was an American I find that America has greatly overemphasized the importance of that episode—which is an episode that has had a profound effect in Great Britain.

SAYS EPISODE OVER

"It will, however, have no effect on the coming coronation—to Britishers it is an episode that is over.

"I would not start to estimate the feeling of the average Britisher on the subject because that would require a lot of study.

"But there is no question that the too great interest displayed by Edward in the workers—their wages and housing was a silent indictment of the inactivity of the government.

"That situation was used as a weapon.

"It must be understood that the constitutional monarch, such as we have in Great Britain, has nothing like the powers of a President of the United States. He has a social power. In changes of the government he has knowledge of both sides.

FRIEND OF WORKERS

"The present King is representative of the dominating class, the industrialists, bankers and aristocaracy where Edward had clearly indicated his interest in the working class.

"While I will not try to describe the feelings of the average Britisher toward the new Monarch I will say that the average Britisher resented the attack of the Archbishop of Canterbury."

He described as one of the most difficult problems facing Europe, the unsettlement and internal unrest in the various countries, because minorities, the most important numerically being the Jews.

SEES LEWIS VICTORY

"As a soldier I realize the stupidity of war as a means of solving international problems," he declared.

He views the problem of world Democracy involved in the solution of the problem of European minorities.

He says:

"English speaking Democracies—Great Britain and America—must work toward the common end that will relieve the tension of minorities which is a pre-disposing cause of war."

America is 50 years behind Great Britain in labor organization, he said, adding:

Trio Invent Boat, Save Boy in River

Lowell, May 6—Sailing a crude type of craft constructed from drift wood and boxes, three boys rescued another boy from the middle of the Merrimack River at a point near Pawtucket and Middlesex street. As Gilbert Rivard, 12, of Burnside street, called for help, the rescuing trio threw their craft together and pulled Gilbert to safety in the nick of time.

The youthful heroes were Henry Dionne, 14, of Middlesex street; his brother, Richard, 11, and Ralph Marquis, 11, of Shawmut avenue.

The Aranmore reached the island late last night after a wireless message from Superintendent Charles Faulkner of Sable Island said his wife was ill. Doctors here decided from his story that she had acute appendicitis.

FEAR BOMB IN MAIL OF WALLY, WINDSOR

acquired slimness, they said, is the main reason that he can no longer wear many of the suits he brought with him from England.

Problem number two is Edward's diet. Mrs. Simpson is said to be concerned over his loss of weight and the problem of cooking special dishes so that he may gain at least eight pounds.

Although Edward's weights when he left England and now are not known, it is understood he lost twelve pounds during his active sojourn in the Austrian Tyrol, largely spent in mountain climbing, and so far has regained only four.

The duke was reported today to have composed the tune to which he and Mrs. Wallis Simpson will march to the altor.

PLAYS IT ON BAGPIPE

The duke played the march on his bagpipe last night for his bride-to-be, and the turreted Chateau de Cande, their pre-marriage retreat, echoed to the shrill music.

A member of the chateau household said Edward had written the composition especially for his American-born fiancee. Years ago he composed a spirited military march for bagpipes which was adopted by an English guard regiment.

Preparations for the marriage, meanwhile, seemed virtually ready for the ceremony soon after Edward's brother, George VI, is crowned in London next Wednesday.

The Duke and Duchess of Kent (the Duchess is the former Princess Marina of Greece) and the Earl and countess of Harewood (the Countess is Edward's sister, Mary, the Princess Royal) may be the only representatives of Britain's royal family at the wedding, it was said.

ROGERS TO GIVE BRIDE

Edward's youngest brother, the Duke of Kent, probably will be best man, and Herman L. Rogers, friend and spokesman of Mrs. Simpson and her former host at Cannes, will give the bride in marriage.

Soon after the wedding the couple are expected to leave the chateau. Redecoration of their prospective honeymoon retreat in southern Austria, Wasserleonburg castle, will be completed about June 1. Edward rented the Austrian castle for $400 a month.

Perhaps a week will elapse between the coronation and Edward's marriage, in line with the duke's plan to detract as little attention as possible from the London celebration.

Plans for after the honeymoon, it was said, were still uncertain. One project understood to be under consideration would take the duke and duchess on a good-will tour of African and other British colonies.

MAY BECOME "STATESMAN"

Within the past four weeks, Edward bought and studied maps of Africa. It was understood he offered his services to King George after his farewell radio address in last December's abdication.

Providing the government approved, Edward might become an "elder statesman." His career as the empire's "traveling salesman" while he was Prince of Wales qualified him to become again a good will ambassador.

Mrs. Simpson's wedding gown, the creation of a Paris fashion house, is nearly ready. Rogers announced she had ordered new clothes and that the order "includes the dress she will wear at her wedding."

Fittings of the bridal costume were being made at the chateau but no other details were disclosed.

Apparently, the former British monarch had in a manner won his first argument with the future duchess—if an argument it was—for it was learned last night that she had consented to an Austrian honeymoon of several months' duration in the gray, 13th century Wasserleonburg Castle, amid the Alpine lakes of southern Austria.

Previously the couple had been described as discussing the comparative merits of a future home in Austria or America, with the former Baltimore debutante insisting on the land of her birth.

A week ago, before Edward broke his self-imposed exile at St. Wolfgang, Austria, to hurry to his fiancee when her English divorce became absolute, the duke permitted his suite to announce he had rented the castle from his friend, Count Paul Muenster, for the summer months.

He let it be known he intended to go there after his wedding.

While deferring for the present her wishes on their future home, Mrs. Simpson was described as still holding out for a home in the United States or, as second choice, Canada.

The Wasserleonburg honeymoon would take Edward back to a country he has come to love. Mountain climbing, swimming and golf would be readily available and the castle would make an ideal headquarters for yachting trips on the Adriatic.

The castle, a 40-room structure built in 1250 and rebuilt in 1747, has beautiful gardens and a simple chapel. It stands near Arnoldstein, Carinthia, near the junction of the Austrian, Italian and Yugoslav frontiers.

Rogers said no press representatives would be received by the duke for at least a fortnight.

A superstition that ill luck would follow his bride if he and Mrs. Simpson were photographed together before the wedding was held responsible for Edward's decision not to pose with her now.

The duke—in shorts and blue sweater—and Mrs. Simpson whiled away yesterday afternoon on the Chateau De Cande's 18-hole golf course, guarded on all sides by French and British police.

Mrs. Simpson did not play but walked around the course, ever near the duke. Edward was matched against Rogers and the spokesman told newspapermen he defeated the former king two up.

Story of Bolivar Is Told in New Encyclopedia

"The George Washington of South America."

That's what they call Simon Bolivar, the man who freed South America from the yoke of Spain.

And there is, too, a striking similarity between the lives of our first President of the United States and Bolivar.

Like George Washington, Bolivar was a son of wealthy parents. He was educated in Madrid and traveled extensively over the continent. Like Washington again, he was a champion of liberty and rose in defense of his people when they needed him most.

He resembled Washington, too, in his military ability, statesmanship and the steady hand with which he guided revolting South American republics to nationhood.

For 11 years Bolivar led patriotic troops against the Spanish royalists before he crushed them in final rout.

This story of Bolivar is just one of the many which Boston Evening American readers have found to their delight in the first two volumes of the Standard American Encyclopedia, now being offerd by this newspaper.

The third volume will be ready Saturday and it is yours for the taking by merely presenting six consecutively numbered coupons and 44 or 68 cents, depending upon which type of binding you prefer. Cores Cut in Brain

WOMAN WALKS AFTER OPERATION

Washington, May 6 (AP)—A brain operation has returned to health a patient completely bedridden for two years, Dr. James W. Watts and Dr. Walter Freeman of George Washington University said today.

They told the Medical Society of the District of Columbia that the operation, which previously had been found effective in treating serious mental disorders, also had remedied a physical disorder.

The woman on whom the operation was performed had been unable to walk for two years and suffered almost continuous intense pains in the back. Her symptoms indicated rheumatic heart disease and arthritis, the surgeons said.

She had averaged one operation every six months for five years without growing better.

Almost as a last resort, Dr. Freeman and Dr. Watts performed the brain operation. It consisted of boring two holes in the skull just back of the hair line and cutting 12 cores about the size of marbles in the pre-frontal lobes of the brain, just behind the forehead. The cores were not removed, but their conection with the surrounding brain tissue was severed.

The operation was described by the surgeons as not extremely difficult, requiring comparatively little time.

The bedridden patient was able to walk agin three days later, and in the intervening five months has not been in bed for a single day. Her intense pains were said to have been reduced to only a slight tenderness of the back.

TRAP FUGITIVE GYPSY QUEEN THEFT CASE

Detectives attached to the office of District Attorney Foley will leave for the western city today to return the Gypsy to this city to face charges of larceny of $3500 from Mrs. Linda Cheng, American wife of a prominent Chinese physician.

Taken into custody with the Bimbo woman was James Miller, alias Karol Plenton, alias Del Palma. Police said he is a former Boston boxer.

The couple were traced through baggage forwarded from Boston. When they called for it at the Indianapolis railroad station police were waiting, on request of Boston.

Mrs. Cheng told police she was beaten and robbed on the third visit to a tea room in Stuart street. She said she met on each of the visits a man who identified himself as "Karol" and a gypsy girl known as Anna Sonia. She identified the latter as Rose Bimbo.

PYTHON Falls for FIDDLE

HIS FREEDOM FOR TUNE

The Hall liner City of Eastbourne, out of Calcutta, arrived at the Army Base today with a cargo of baby elephants, monkeys, snakes, storks and squirrels, and one of the tallest tales of the season.

Its assorted bird and animal cargo of 734 heads was consigned to the Benson farms at Nashua, N. H., and John T. Benson, manager of the farms, was there to supervise unloading.

Two-year-old cow elephants from India were getting all the attention—even to a radio broadcast—when the story of Chief Engineer A. Phayre and a 25-foot python stole the show.

Chief Engineer Phayre, it appears is an amateur violinist of note. In spare moments at sea he is accustomed to wooing sweet strains from his instrument. His bunk, on this trip, was directly over the hold where the pythons were stored.

Musical Python

No one thought anything about that until a week or so after the ship left Calcutta. Then, one night, the python broke loose. After considerable scrambling he was crated up again.

The same thing happened a few days after that. And a few days after that. And by this time everyone agreed that the python was getting to be a darned nuisance.

It wasn't until one night when Phayre was warming up on his violin that they discovered he was the cause of the phython's escapes. The long snake was hammering away no end at the wooden bars of his cage while the engineer was playing.

So the order went out for Phayre to stop his music. He did, and the trip was uneventful enough until two days ago. Then, apparently for no reason at all—or maybe because he was lonesome for the violin—the python went on the loose once more.

Hunt high and low as they did no one could find the snake. Officers were pretty much worried because after all, a 25-foot python is no pet to have roaming around. Several hours of suspense passed while the hunt went on.

Snake Charmer

Suddenly someone conceived the idea of inviting Phayre to go into action and see if he couldn't charm the ornery snake out of hiding. The engineer agreed.

He played some oriental music. He played some British airs. He tried almost everything in his repertoire. And there was no snake. Then he shook the sweat from his brow, wiggled his fingers and took the bow firmly in hand once more.

"O-o-o-h, the-e-e-ere's no-o-o-o place li-i-ike ho-o-ome—" he plaintively wailed on his violin. And hardly had he finished the first line when he heard a rustling and a swishing and the missing python came slithering towards him, looking as sheepish as a snake can look.

So quick the other seamen grabbed the recalcitrant snake and shoved him in his crate and nailed a few two-by-fours over the top.

Phayre bowed and put his violin away.

And you can believe it or not, but the crew of the City of Eastbourne swear it's the truth.

The other animal passengers consisted of the aforementioned elephants, 600 assorted monkeys, two Malayan apes, 12 dog-faced monkeys, 61 other pythons, 12 cobras, 16 storks, four cranes and 24 Indian squirrels.

Ochs' Widow Dies

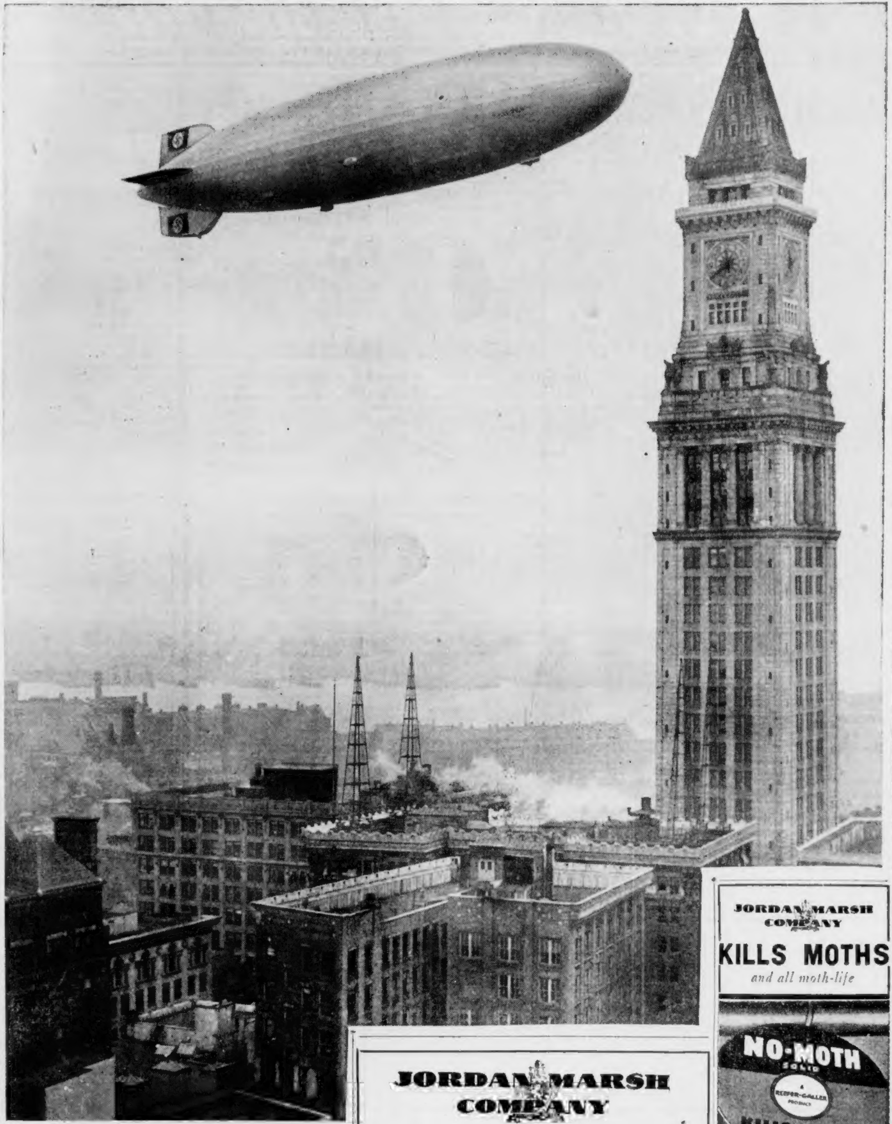
Zeppelin Skims Hub After Beating Ocean Gales



Like a huge, silver wraith out of the mist, the dirigible Hindenburg poked her nose through swirling fog today to fly low over Boston roof-tops on her way to Lakehurst, N. J., and the terminus of her initial 1937 flight from Germany. Battling head winds and gales all across the Atlantic air lanes, the huge Zeppelin was 8½ hours behind schedule when she reached here, but nevertheless was scheduled to turn about shortly before midnight and head back for Germany. She brought 39 passengers and her crew of 61 officers and men on the east-to-west crossing, including a German mother who will visit her daughter and son-in-law at Andover. Going back tonight she will carry a capacity load of 70 passengers, many headed for England's coronation. Cameraman Bill Jones of the Boston Evening American staff snapped this picture as the dirigible passed the Customs House today.

Zep Hindenburg Late Over Boston

west rim of South Boston and down the coast for Lakehurst.

Heavy head-winds over the Atlantic had made the dirigible late. She was due at Lakehurst today at 6 a. m., but her speed had been reduced about 20 knots because of the wind.

RETURN TRIP

It is planned for the dirigible to leave Lakehurst tonight at 10, or midnight, for the return trip to Germany, carrying some passengers who will attend the coronation in England.

On board the Zep on her East-to-West flight opening the season is Mrs. Marie Klaeemann of Germany, mother of Mrs. John Bolten of Andover, whose husband owns the Bolta Rubber Co., Lawrence. The German mother is bound on a visit to her daughter and son-in-law.

Should the Hindenburg depart again tonight, as planned, it will be the fastest "turn-around" thus far in her many flights to and from the United States.

Coming here on the first 1937 flight she carries 39 passengers and a crew of 61 officers and men.

FLAMES RAGE IN WOODS

Massachusetts state police today started an investigation and search for a firebug in the Plymouth district as an aftermath of two days of forest fires that destroyed thousands of acres of woodland, caused thousands of dollars in damage and resulted in death for two men.

As 3000 acres were smouldering in the vicinity of Plymouth this morning, the town was mourning the loss of two gallant fighters who were trapped by the flames at the height of the fight. The body of James H. Devitt, Jr., 20, of Plymouth, was found in the Symmington area, so disfigured that identification was possible only by a ring of the class of '36 at Plymouth High school.

Devitt's body was found only a few yards away from the spot where Herbert Benton, 30, Plymouth WPA worker, met his death in the furnace-like conflagration. Funeral services for Benton were held yesterday and burial was in the Vine Hills cemetery.

Due to the fact that eleven separate fires broke out in tha tinder-dry Cape Cod woods yesterday, within the space of two hours, state troopers are on the lookout for a firebug.

The worst of these fires was the one that ripped along the old West Barnstable road and ruined an area four miles long and a half-mile wide.

During the two-day fight against fires on the Cape thrilling rescue stories abounded. At Barnstable village flames were halted within 50 yards of the houses. Four Hyannis boys were rescued after fire surrounded a geodetic survey tower.

Governor Charles F. Hurley rushed to the scene of the fires on Tuesday night and remained in Plymouth until late the following morning.

A 40-acre fire startled Pittsfield yesterday and at Ludlow 500 acres were destroyed during a 24-hour blaze. Other fires were reported in Belchertown and Granby.

Dedicate Mellon Temple

Magic Science Home Cost 6 Millions

Pittsburgh, May 6 (AP)—Mellon Institute today dedicated its $6,000,000 new building, the world's largest research institution, its exterior a Greek temple nine stories high, its interior new laboratory magic.

It has three and one-half miles of corridors leading to 322 laboratory rooms where 185 scientists work.

In the new laboratories the scientist can get the temperature of tropics or Arctic, or the climate of the Sahara for his experiments simply by turning a thermostat.

If he wants a vacuum resembling that on the surface of the moon he can get it out of a pipe in any laboratory. Other pipes will give him steam, gas, hot or distilled water with the turn of a valve.

The dedication today was in honor of Andrew W. Mellon and the late Richard B. Mellon, founders of the institute. They set it up as "an independent non-profit scientific institution whose sole aim would be the search for truth."

Train Wrecks Auto Parked on Tracks

A roadster parked on the tracks in the New Haven railroad yards at Sleeper and Congress streets, South Boston, was wrecked today when it was struck by a freight train.

Women Help Seize R. I. Mill in Strike

Without light or heat, and with little food, 350 employes of the Royal Weaving Company, Pawtucket, including 150 women, held possession of the large plant today in defiance of the management, which announced its intention of liquidating to thwart the determined strikers.

A majority of the 700 workers in the plant decided to stage a sit-down strike when a group of employes announced, after conferring with officials, that they would be ordered from the premises.

Shouting defiance to the plant operators, the 350 besieged employes announced their intentions to "stick it out" today.

Shortly before noon, however, representatives of the CIO went into a conference with officials of the mills in an attempt to settle the strike. John Cavanaugh, organizer in the Pawtucket area, said the CIO sought wage increases and a 40-hour week.

Labor won a victory in Providence when 300 American Federation of Labor jewelry workers, who have been on strike for four weeks, returned to work after winning their campaign for increased wages and shorter hours.

700 BACK ON JOBS

Three of the 19 factories involved in a 43-day strike at Lewiston and Auburn, Me., were running on full time today, with 700 workers returning to their benches under a temporary agreement.

Workers in the other 16 plants, however, remained on strike, with arbitration pending.

Maine industrial circles were startled, however, when Powers Hapgood, New England secretary of the CIO, on trial in the Maine Supreme Court on contempt charges, stated the union had spent approximately $65,000 in efforts to organize Lewiston-Auburn shoe workers.

The week's toll of violence, which started when two milk truck drivers were slugged in Newton in connection with labor trouble at the C. L. Woodland Company dairies, mounted when an attack was reported from Pittsfield.

Four strikers from the Lichtman-Widen tanneries in Pittsfield were today held under $2500 bail each on charges of assault and battery on a foreman and another employe. The two victims were slightly injured and the strikers were still behind bars, unable to furnish bail.

CONFER TODAY

The situation in the dairy strike in Watertown may be ironed out today during a forenoon conference between David Greer, counsel for the Woodland Company, and Matthew H. Dunn, counsel for union truck drivers.

Providence police were gathering this morning to prevent rioting when 800 strikers of the Philip Baker Rubber Company announced they would march at noon to the state house to appeal to Governor Robert E. Quinn for aid.

Fall River and Lowell strikes continued today. The Fall River mayor appealed to the state to help settle a strike involving 1000 workers at the I. Schneiderson and Sons plant. The Lowell strike involved 1700 strikers in the Boott mills.

CHAUFFEURS RETURN

Beyond New England the strike situation involved a walk-out in the General Motors shops in St. Louis; a strike of seamen of the United Fruit Company ships in New York Harbor; a continuance of a hotel employes' walk-out in San Francisco and a bakery labor battle in Kansas City where 20,000 loaves of bread were dumped into the streets.

MINTER DIARIES GIVE TAYLOR DEATH CLUE

Los Angeles, May 6 (AP)—District Attorney Buron Fitts announced today a renewed investigation into Moviedom's greatest mystery, the slaying of Director William Desmond Taylor 15 years ago.

The prosecutor said Mary Miles Minter, silent screen star; Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, her mother; and Mrs. Margaret Fillmore, her sister, have been subpoenaed to appear before the county grand jury.

He claimed "information never before disclosed." This included two diaries.

Mrs. Fillmore was questioned last night by Fitts, then placed under the protection of a woman investigator until the grand jury could start its new inquiry today.

Fitts said information would be given the jury which was contained in a deposition made by Mrs. Fillmore as a part of a civil suit aginst her mother. Mrs. Fillmore is seeking to recover $48,000 which she claims Mrs. Shelby took from a safe-deposit box.

Mary Minter Diaries Beat Mary Astor's

Los Angeles, May 6 (INS)—Two diaries figure prominently in the new inquiry being used into the 15-year-old unsolved murder of William Desmond Taylor, ace movie director. In a deposition Mrs. Margaret Fillmore referred to the diaries of her sister, Mary Miles Minter, the former screen star.

"They are so diabolical and so pathetic they make the Mary Astor diary look like a postscript," she said, according to the deposition.

The district attorney said two diaries were found by his investigators at Mary Miles Minter's Beverly Hills home and would be read to the grand jury.

William Desmond Taylor, whose real name was William Deanez Tanner, directed Miss Minter in several pictures and was the friend of many film notables of his day.

He was shot in the back and killed on the evening of February 1, 1922.

Mary Minter's Sister's Deposition Revealed

Los Angeles, May 6 (INS)—Following are the pertinent excerpts from the deposition given by Mrs. Margaret Fillmore, sister of Mary Miles Minter, which today caused the long-dead William Desmond Taylor murder case to be reopened.

The deposition in a civil action between Mrs. Fillmore and her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, was taken by Mrs. Shelby's attorney, Clyde F. Murphy.

Q—(By Murphy) "I notice the bank record shows that you and your sister used the same safety deposit box starting in August of last year?"

Answer (by Mrs. Fillmore): "I did that on purpose. I did it to give her a place to put her two diaries, which were so diabolical and so pathetic they made Mary Astor's diary looke like a postscript. I didn't want Mrs. Shelby to publish them against the girl."

QUIZZED ON SERVICES

(Then follows questioning regarding the asserted sale of some Laughing Park property in which Mrs. Fillmore was asserted to have profited to the extent of $133,000.)

Q—"Was Mrs. Shelby under any legal or moral obligation to you in the year 1923, to give you $133,000?"

A—"I wouldn't call it legal. The moral obligation would be a matter of opinion, but it was more or less standing by her against the public . . . Protection. That could have been legal. And staying by her and walking the floors with Thomas Lee Woolwine (district attorney in 1922) keeping her out of possible more serious consequences."

PROTECTED MOTHER

Q—"Was she under accusation at that time?"

N A—"Some people said so."

Q—"And for that service you charged the modest sum of $133,000?"

(Mrs. Fillmore refused to answer this question on advice of her attorney, Richard Cantillon.)

Q (by Murphy)—"What did you give your mother in return?"

A—"Do you want me to speak frankly?"

Q—"Yes."

Q—"It it your contention your mother killed William Desmond Taylor?"

A.—"I don't have to answer that question."

Q—"Well, have you ever stated it to any person?"

Auto Injuries Fatal to Boy, 4

Four-year-old James Holland of Prescott street, Somerville, died today at Central hospital, Somerville, from injuries received Tuesday when he was knocked down by an automobile driven by Joseph Basile of Medford.

According to police, the boy ran out from the curb at Union square and Summer street, collided with the rear fender of Basile's car and fell to the pavement, striking his head.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.

Damon Runyon

Dear sir: My wife Ethel and me went over to see a picture in a Broadway movie joint the other night because Ethel saw in the paper where it was a most wonderful picture and worth anybody seeing.

I asked the man outside the movie joint if there was any seats inside and he said yes there are plenty of seats so I paid my good dough for a couple of duckets and we went in. It was a great big movie joint and there was ushers at every aisle and right away these ushers started shooing us away from their aisles saying there was no seats except on the sides.

My wife Ethel wanted to go down the middle isle and take a look around for herself because sometimes there are seats left that the ushers do not know about but right away the middle aisle usher got tough with us and put his arms out so we could not pass and I had a notion to pop him one but my wife Ethel does not like scenes of this nature unless she starts them herself.

Wrong Angles

So we went over to one side of the house and found a couple of empty seats, but the way this movie joint is built the side seats are at quite an angle to the screen, and when you are looking at a picture from a slant it hurt your eyes, no matter how good the picture is, and, besides, it makes the people in the picture look hump-backed and all out of shape.

Of course, the side seats are all right if they have one of those stage presentations, because then you do not mind the stage presentation so much, but it makes you cock-eyed to look at a picture from such a slant.

But that was all the seats there was and, we sat there awhile, and finally my wife Ethel ses I am not going to get a headache and spoil my eyesight looking at a picture on a slant and you go see the manager and either get us better seats or make him give us our dough back.

So I went out into the lobby and asked an usher if I could see the manager and the ushers ses what do you want to see him for and I ses that is none of your business this is a personal matter. He ses the manager is very busy just now. I ses so am I and I have to see him at once and after giving me some dirty looks the usher pointed out a guy who was standing in the lobby with his hands behind him and ses that is the manager.

Better Slanted

Well I ses he surely looks very busy and then I spoke to the manager very polite and ses are you the manager and he ses I am. Then I ses people cannot enjoy pictures if they have to look at them on the slant and the manager ses well there is something in what you say although I hear some pictures look better on a slant than any other way.

All right I ses but looking at pictures on a slant gives people headaches and hurts their eyes especially women. I ses here is a movie joint that must have cost somebody a pile of money and I do not see why they had to build it so that it has seats where people have to look at the pictures on a slant. I ses they ought to do something to the guy who built this joint. I ses it is not fair and it is not justice to have guys standing out in front saying there are plenty of seats left and then find that you pay your good dough to set in seats that make you look at the picture on a slant.

Well, brother, the manager ses I did not build this joint I am only the manager.

House Motto

I ses my wife Ethel thinks we ought to have better seats or get our dough back and he ses well brother a seat is a seat and I do not see where you have any license to be hollering for your dough back if you are inside and in any kind of a seat. However he ses I will go in with you and see if I can find you something better. He ses the motto of this house is the customer is to be pleased.

I ses alright mister but you should tell the guy outside that hereafter when people ask him if there are any seats left he should tell them if the seats are on the side or where so people who do not like to look at pictures on the slant would not lay out their good dough for duckets.

But about that time my wife Ethel came out of the movie joint all excited and ses I found a good seat after you left and moved into it but a fat guy next to me kept giving me the knee and I want you to go in there and slug him for it but the manager ses, brother, I guess I better give you your dough back after all and you come around again when you are sure to get good seats and I ses I guess so too. The last time I tried to slug a guy for giving my wife Ethel the knee in a movie joint I got a broken nose from him and I had trouble with her afterwards too because the guy said he did not give her the knee but that it was the other way around and she said I acted as if I believed him.

Anyhow if the manager does like he ses he would and speaks to the owners of that movie joint about fixing the seats so people will not have to look at pictures on the slant I will feel that I have got a little justice for people in this world after all and that is something.

Yours truly,
JOE TURP.

CIO AID READY IN FILM STRIKE

Hollywood, May 6 (INS)—Angered by rebuffs from the American Federation of Labor, striking motion picture unions today threatened to turn to the militant Committee for Industrial Organization for support in their war against the film industry.

After a curt rejection of a peace proposal offered by the Central Labor Council here, reigning American Federation of Labor body, strike strategists today reassembled picket lines about the "Big Ten" studios and announced "the strike is still on."

Lessing said he had received "an unselfish offer of support" from the CIO in case he decides on this move.

Jurors View Scene Of Axe Killing

Members of the Middlesex County grand jury, called by District Attorney Warren L. Bishop to investigate the brutal axe-slaying of Thaddeus J. Grautski, 23-year-old Pepperell mill worker, today left Cambridge for the scene of the murder.

The district attorney had called a special session of the grand jury to seek a "John Doe" warrant.

Only two witnesses appeared before the grand jury this morning. They were Police Chief Clifford F. Walcott of Pepperell and Inspector Daniel O'Connell, head of the district attorney's investigating staff.

Meanwhile John Grautski, 54, father of the slain youth, was held without bail in Somerville jail as a suspicious person by the district attorney. Police quizzed the father for five hours this morning.

Boeloe Grautski, 20, brother of the youth whose head was beaten to a pulp with an axe in his Pepperell home, was released by police after lengthy examination.

Although the Grautski boy died almost at once from the first blow struck him with the axe, state detectives announced his assailant had rained blow after blow on the prostrate youth.

An autopsy performed by Dr. Timothy Leary, Suffolk county medical examiner, and Dr. Edward T. Lilly of Shirley, revealed the youth died of a compound fracture of the skull.

While the victim's mother, and two sisters and brothers, moaned with hysteria at the tragedy, the father remained calm and dispassionate.

LONDON COURT FAILS TO END BUS STRIKE

London, May 6 (AP)—Complete stoppage of London's buses until after the coronation of King George VI next Wednesday grew more probable today when a court of inquiry failed to decide upon the justice of the 25,500 strikers' demands.

The court said evidence placed before it by thebusmen to show they needed a seven and a half hour work day for health reasons was "inconclusive," but warranted further investigation.

Hope was expressed in some quarters, however, that the busmen would be willing to return to work until such an inquiry could be made.

Meanwhile immediate danger that London's 10,000 street car workers would join the strike appeared to have passed today.

Leaders of the street car employes, who had said yesterday they would walk out despite union orders to the contrary, had decided today after a conference to remain on the job.

The street car employes' decision to remain at work followed Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's plea for industrial quiet in an address to the House of Commons.

He urged an end to the bus walkout, with coronation visitors beginning to reach the city, and asked Welsh and English coal miners not to stage the strike they have called for May 22.

Apparently in response to his plea, negotiations to avert the coal strike opened unexpectedly in London today, when the executive of the Mine Workers Federation, or union, accepted an invitation to confer with the secretary of mines, Capt. H. F. C. Crookshank.

Londoners have taken the bus strike philosophically.

Americans Bow to Royalty

2 Boston Women Pay Homage

London, May 6 (AP)—Millions of dollars' worth of jewels and costly gowns will be worn in the coronation social marathon just launched, and the precious stones promise to turn somber Westminster Abbey into a glittering treasure chest at the crowning of George VI next Wednesday.

The coronation social season opened in the gold-decked ballrom of Buckingham Palace last night when 500 debutantes, including 14 Americans, made their bows before King George and Queen Elizabeth in the first of three royal courts.

Every woman at the Abbey ceremony—from the queen down—will wear the most-precious jewels she owns, tiaras, necklaces and bracelets.

It is set entirely with diamonds, topped by a jeweled orb and cross mounted on the summit of gem-studed bands above the purple velvet cap. Queen Mary will wear jewels estimated to be worth more than a million dollars.

The diadem portion of the crown used for her Coronation in 1911 will top her famous pompadour and a brilliant diamond necklace and bracelets will encircle her throat and wrists. Princess Elizabeth, heiress presumptive to the throne, and her sister, Princess Margaret Rose, will wear their first coronets—of silver gilt for lightness, and without jewels.

AMERICANS PRESENTED

The coronation debutantes received the thrill of their lives when they curtsied before the King and Queen last night. For the Americans, who were presented by Mrs. Robert W. Bingham, wife of the U. S. ambassador, the brilliant ceremony climaxed several weeks of study in deportment and costume assembling.

The women presented a glowing pageant of youthful beauty in their white silver gowns as they filed past the royal dais. Although several confessed beforehand they were "scared to death" they were the picture of outward calm at the big moment.

"It has meant so much preparation," said one American debutante, "but it is worth every bit of it. It is a wonderful experience."

The court began at 9:30, when the King and Queen and other members of the royal family walked in procession from the state dining room to the ballroom with the Lord Chamberlain. Great officers of state walked backward before them.

SECOND COURT TONIGHT

A hush fell on the throng as a string band of the Scots Guards played the national anthem and their majesties ascended their thrones. The Lord Chamberlain announced the name of the first woman to pass the dais and the first court of George VI's reign had started.

The second court will be held tonight when women from Australia, South Africa and Canada will be presented in keeping with the King's desire that Dominions take active part in the Coronation season. The third court will take place July 1.

Last night's debutantes formed a queue of nodding white plumes with their headdresses as they moved slowly past the thrones at the rate of about 10 every minute. Each gave her card to a court official, heard her name called and swept into a low curtsy before the King. She curtsied again to the Queen and moved slowly away, keeping her face toward the royal pair.

The Americans presented were: Miss Eleanora Bowdoin of Aiken, S. C.; Miss George Temple Bowdoin of New York City; Miss Catherine M. Maher of Lincoln, Neb.; Mrs. George W. Norton, Jr., of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. John Perrin of Boston, Mass.; Miss Anne Schenck of Philadelphia; Mrs. yron Hilliard New York City; Miss Vesta Putnam Culbertson of Chicago; Mrs. F. Vernon Foster of West Orange, N. J.; Miss Lydia Fuller of Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Dozier L. Gardner of Philadelphia; Mrs. Byron Hilliard of Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. Julia Henry of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the attorney-general of the United States, and Mrs. Grenville T. Emmett, wife of the United States minister to the Netherlands, were presented as members of the official list to the court.

On tonight's social program was a reception at the Danish legation in honor of Crown Prince Frederick and Crown Princess Ingrid of Denmark, marking the silver jubilee of King Christian X. The reception will be given by the Danish Minister and Countess Ashleveldt-Laurvig.

Must Pay $400 for Mystery Burial

Salem, May 6—Jeremiah Quirk, Peabody real estate man, was today ordered to make restitution of approximately $400 to two Newburyport plaintiffs for burying a man, whose identity is now unknown, but at first believed to be Quirk's brother, and on whom Quirk collected approximately $800 insurance.

Judge Harry R. Dowd today signed the petition of Mrs. Nellie Murray, and Timothy O'Connell, Newburyport undertaker, asking restitution of expenses in bringing the man's body to Boston from Greencastle, Ind.

Mrs. Muray had the body brought brought to Boston from Indiana, believing it to be that of a brother.

On viewing the body, she discovered it was not that of her brother, and had it buried in Mr. Benedict Cemetery in Boston.

Quirk later claimed the body as that of his brother, collected the insurance and later disclaimed the identity after he had said he had sen his brother alive in New York.

Ruling that his brother is now legally dead, since Quirk collected the insurance, Judge Dowd today signed the petition ordering him to make restitution to the two Newburyport plaintiffs.

Cousin Sees Show Of Mark Twain

New York, May 6 (US)—Mark Twain's second cousin, Cyril Clemens, has come to New York to attend the movie premiere of "The Prince and the Pauper."

Mr. Clemens, who is president of the international Mark Twain Society, said he likes to check up on the movie versions of stories written by the famous American author to see that the facts are correct.

QUEEN SMILES, KING YAWNS AS DEBS PARADE

(Editor's Note: A sprightly description of the season's first royal court in London, in which 12 lucky American matrons and debutantes made their bows before the King and Queen, was cabled today by Dorothy Kilgallen, famous girl reporter, who will write her impressions of the coronation on May 12

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Copyright 1937

London, May 6 — Debutantes caught the King yawning at the first Royal court of the Coronation season.

In striking contrast to the Duke of Windsor, who as Prince of Wales used to stand behind Queen Mary's throne winking at pretty girls, King George VI sat solemnly throughout last night's colorful presentations and seldom if ever smiled.

"His Majesty looked rather bored, I thought," said a British debutante to me.

"The Queen smiled constantly, but the King looked as though he would rather have been at home with a good book. I can't say I blamed him. It must have been dull sitting there and watching the same performance several hundred times.

Those who attended Buckingham Palace festivities last night agreed that the first court under their new majesties was duller than those of the reign of George V and Queen Mary, although the costumes and jewelry were more elaborate.

"I think it would have been more exciting if the Duke of Kent had been holding the Coronation courts," one dowager confided.

Although Edward used to make no secret of his impatience with lengthy court ceremonials, he succeeded in making royal functions lively, if only because of his presence as the world's most eligible bachelor and the fact that at any moment he might bestow a royal smile upon some fluttering debutante.

No such suspense existed in the throne room last night. George being married, was in much the same position as a movies hero with a wife. His fan following is less than a bachelor's besides, he isn't the winking type.

"He looked quite handsome, though," a British debutante admited.. "He was a little pale but had nice curly hair and loked broad-shouldered in his scarlet uniform.. The Quen, while not pretty, smiled very sweetly and he jewels were magnificent."

Most of the debutantes went through the curtseying ceremony without seeing much more than a blue color and the glitter of the throne rom.

It takes less than a minute for a debutante to enter, make her bow and exit, so most of the girls learn what the Queen was wearing when they read the papers the next morning.

"I was so excited when my name was called I forget everything except the way I had been taught to curtsey," said one debutante. "And it was all over before I knek it."

Huge Lottery Ticket Seizures

Seizure of thousands of lottery tickets in the mails and "on a truck" was revealed today by Chief Postal Inspector John J. Breslin.

Postal authofities offered no further explanation of the truck seizure made by Inspector Tennyson Jefferson. The latter also reported that a large number of lottery aplication blanks had been seized.

The tckets were for the "National Cuban Lottery," ofering a grand prize of $100,000 and stated that "one out of every 13 draws a prize."

The drawing was to be held June 2 and consisted, the ticket read, of only 21,000 tickets with "all prizes guarantted in full by the treasury department of the Cuban government."

Second prize was $20,000, third $10,000 and 1504 other prizes ranging from $1000 to $100 the ticket stated. The price of each ticket was 60 cents but no one could buy less than five, it was stipulated.

What! Do I get extra trousers too?

Have you a skeleton in your closet? Have you a perfectly good coat and vest you're ashamed to bring out into the open — because the pants look shabby? Stop being plagued by these ghosts! We can show you how. ★ We've a particular pride in seeing our clothes live to a ripe old age — for selfish reasons. It's a swell way to make friends — and hold them! Sturdy woolens do their part. Fine needlework helps a lot. But in the long run, there's nothing like an extra pair of trousers for extra wear. They're your "ace-in-the-hole" — your "old-age" insurance — a luxury you can easily enjoy. Extra trousers cost nothing extra, at Bond's — the only place in town where 2 trousers are included with every suit! ★ For most men, buying a new suit of clothes is a major operation. Ex-Wife and Nurse Meet In Melanson Love Suit

Have Friendly Chat in Court

It was an exciting moment for spectators in Suffolk Court today when attractive Mrs. Caroline Phillipe Melanson of Beverly faced the pretty 28-year-old nurse who is suing her ex-husband for $50,000 for breach of promise.

But the young matron and Celia Hammond, her one-time love rival, greeted each other with smiles and exchanged commonplaces in the friendliest of fashion.

This scene came at the end of another session in which Miss Hammond spent hours on the stand telling more of her romance with Gregory Melanson, Swampscott aviator-explorer she accuses of betraying her.

Mrs. Melanson was summoned by the Hammond girl's counsel to tell about the love letters her husband sent Miss Hammond and which the wife herself used in getting a divorce.

The plaintiff had told Judge Walter L. Collins that she had turned over the passionate missives to Mrs. Melanson at Tamworth, N. H., because she wanted to avoid a scandal. Miss Hammond later was named in the Melanson divorce action.

Today after she had resumed the stand, the girl was asked if she had told Mrs. Melanson the dates on which she says Melanson and she had relations.

"No I didn't," was her response. "I thought she already knew them."

SHOWED LETTERS

Joseph Melanson, older brother of the defendant, was in one of the front row seats, listening intently. He heard himself mentioned frequently, both by the plaintiff and later by her sister, Bertha, 18.

Celia was asked if Joseph was the one who told her of Gregory being a married man.

"He never mentioned Gregory to me at Woleboro," she said, except when I might have asked him how Gregory was."

—Did Joe say that the family held an iron hand on Greg and would do almost anything to get him out of trouble? A—Yes.

TELLS OF VISIT

Q—Whom did you meet there, A—I don't exactly recall. Our car was parked only a few minutes. I believe it was his mother's home.

Q—Did you see Mrs. Melanson (the wife) in Swampscott? A—No. The first time I met her was in Wolfeboro, when I gave her the letters.

Q—What did you think of that letter from Greg in September, 1935, telling you that he was "all through"? A—I couldn't understand it. I just didn't believe he meant what he wrote.

Q—Did you ever go on airplane rides with Greg? A—Yes.

Q—When. A—I think it was in July of 1935, at North Conway. He took me up then.

Q—Where did you sit? Did you sit together? A—I sat in the back alone. Gregf sat up in front with the pilot, whose name I don't know.

BENCH CONFERENCE

Q—You didn't sit with him? A—No, I sat by myself. He was by the controls.

A bench conference was called at this point in which some of the phrases of the letters in the case were discussed.

Miss Hammond, in a whisper, explained that one phrase was just a code endearment they used.

TESTIFIES OF REBUFF

A few months later, she continued, she was back home in New Hampshire and she and Celia sought out Gregory at his Woleboro place. She testified:

"Gregory answered the door and he said to Celia: 'What are you doing here? I'm sick of seeing your face. I don't want to see it any more.' Then he pushed Celia down the steps."

Q—What happened then? A—Celia didn't know what to think. She asked Gregory what was the matter with him, but he didn't answer. So we went home.

The plaintiff also told the court that while she gave her heart to Melanson in November, 1934, the date set for their wedding was the following February.

Then Bertha Hammond took the stand. She told of first meeting Gregory in August, 1934, at Tamworth. She said he called for her sister and took her for an automobile ride. Afterwards, she said, he called many times.

One day, she said, she and Celia were in a front room of their house when the defendant arrived.

Q—What happened? A—Gregory came in and kissed Celia several times and hugged her. He said he missed her teribly and never wanted to be away from her again. He took out a wrist watch and gave it to her. She said she thought it was beautiful.

"TO BE MARRIED"

Q—Did he say anything about marriage? A—Yes. He said he and Celia were going to be married and asked me if I'd like to come and live with them. He said he'd shown Celia's picture to his mother and that she thought Celia was a good-looking girl and the type he'd ought to marry.

Miss Hammond said that after that occasion, Gregoy called at their home every day.

Q—Was anything more said about marriage? A—Oh, yes. Another day Gregory came and said that his mother thought it would be very nice if he and Celia got married and lived in New Hampshire.

The witness said that she went to work for the defendant's brother, Joseph, later and that eventually she became governess for his daughter at his Swampscott home.

"I found out about Gregg being married there," she said. "And I wrote to Celia and told her."

Approve Judges' Retirement Bill

A bill providing for the voluntary retirement of judges at the age of 70 at three-quarters pay was reported favorably today by the legislative judiciary committee.

Meanwhile, pending the approval or rejection of this bill by the legislature, Governor Hurley is holding up the resignation of Judge William F. Bacon of Newton. Under present circumstances, the govednor has stated, Judge Bacon would only receive a pension of half pay.

Tucker On Trial For Leaving Wife

New York, May 6 (INS)—Burton Tucker, 31, soda-jerker cinderella boy, goes on trial here today on charges of abandoning his 58-year-old wife and their three children.

Tucker was arrested in Topsfield, Mass., on his once wealthy wife's complaint.

Mrs. Tucker, who was said to be wealthy when she married in 1923, now claims she is "broke."

Drop Charge After Prisoner Serves Only 6 Months

A case without precedent in the courts of Massachusetts came to a sudden close today in Middlesex superior court when an indictment charging Harry O. Jones, 36, of Spring street, Watertown, with a statutory offense was nol prossed.

The unusual aspect of the case came when Jones, after being sentenced to four to five years in state prison, appealed to the supreme court.

After serving six months of the sentence, imposed last October, Jones was granted a new trial because of the death of the court stenographer, Alexander Gilbert, which made it impossible for Jones to perfect an appeal.

In nol prossing the indictment today, Assistant District Attorney William G. Andrew termed Jones' six months in State Prison as "a substantial part of the sentence."

Setting forth that Jones had been originally charged with four offenses, but had been acquitted of three and convicted on the fourth, Andrew declared:

"Inasmuch as the defendant has served a substantial sentence in State Prison for this offense and inasmuch as the government case is much weaker by reason of former asquittals, justicve does not require that the children in question be placed through an ordeal of another trial."

OCEAN PLANES TO PASS HUB

Assurance that Boston will be considered as an auxiliary terminal on the transatlantic air mail route, expected to be inaugurated next fall, was given Mayor Mansfield in Washington today by Assistant Postmaster-General Harlee Branch.

According to word received in Boston, Mayor Mansfield, Senator Henry Cabbot Lodge, Jr., and four Massachusetts congressmen were told that present flight plans call for passing over this city.

The congressmen present were John W. McCormack of South Boston, John P. Higgins of the West End, Edith Nourse Rogers of Lowell and Robert Luce, Waltham.

At the conference, the mayor pointed out that Boston is 200 miles nearer Europe by air on the northern route than any other major east coast city and has the only municipal airport providing both land and seaplane facilities.

N. Y. Senate Bans Tax Exemptions

Albany, N. Y., May 6 (AP)—New York's Senate passed and sent to the Assembly today a bill to end state income tax exemptions on salaries of constitutional officers and members of the judiciary.

Girl Scouts Meet In Celebration 25th Birthday

The Girl Scouts of America are celebrating their 25th birthday this year, so the annual New England Regional Conference is taking on the semblance of a very gay and festive occasion in spite of the serious problems and discussions that are ironed out during its sessions.

The conference opens tonight with a colorful bit of pageantry staged by the Scouts, when 25 girls gather round a huge birthday cake and with a fitting little ceremony, light the equal number of candles. The backdrop for this scene will be 32 girls dressed in the native costumes of the 32 nations in which the Girl Scout movement exists.

Mrs. Edith T. Cabot of Providence, chairman of the New England Regional Girl Scouts committee, will preside at the opening meeting of the three-day session, and Mrs. Valentine Hollingsworth will welcome the delegates in behalf of the Boston Scouts, of whom she is commissioner.

Before the meeting, Mrs. Cabot will give a dinner party at the Statler in honor of Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Frank D. Ashburn headmaster of the Brooks school, and Mrs. Ashburn, and members of the regional committee. Dr. Ashburn will be the principal speaker at the opening session of the conference.

Mary Nolan, once the toast of Broadway as a Follies girl topnotcher under the name of Imogene Wilson, and who later won fame in the films, is shown as she is today. Haggard and wan, she is being removed from the prison ward of Bellevue Hospital in New York after a friend came forward and promised to pay an old dress bill she had contracted.

DRILL ELECTION IN E. BOSTON

The names of the five officers elected by the cadets of the East Boston High school during their drill and competition Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday this week were announced today at assembly by Headmaster Bertram C. Richardson.

The five are to serve in the annual Boston High school cadets' parade in June. They are: Captain Robert Fallon, colonel; Captain James Alterisio, lieutenant-colonel; Captain Amando Pellegrino, major of the first battalion; Captain Frank Farnham, major of the second and Captain Henry Carfagna, major of the third.

Major J. E. Bechtold and Major R. E. MacLeod of the regular army were judges at the drill, conducted under the direction of Major Edward F. Corbett.

MARY NOLAN FINDS PAL TO PAY OLD BILL

New York, May 6 (INS)—Mary Nolan, one-time glamor girl of the Ziegfeld stage, who skyrocketed to fame [illegible] Broadway [illegible] Hollywood, was freed [illegible] on cell and Bellevue Hospital today.

Making plans for a "comeback," Miss Nolan, known as Imogene Wilson and "Bubbles" to the stage, announced:

"I'm on the upgrade again. I won't be downed. I have a friend. I have a job. I'm pulling through."

The "friend," it seems, is Al Rein, a theatrical manager who signed an agreement with a collection agency to pay Miss Nolan's $407.87 dress bill.

Haggard and tired looking, the [illegible] pronounced by Ziegfeld as the most beautiful of all he ever glorified, d[illegible]:

"All my fair-weather Broadway friends for whom I did everything when I had plenty of money, have forgotten me now. But I have one person on whom I can rely, and believe me I'm not letting him down."

"Terribly sorry," Castelli's message said. "Unforeseen circumstances prevent me from going to Boston Thursday. Will advise next possible date."

Senator Edmund S. Oppenheimer, chairman of the special legislative commission conducting the inquisitorial hearings, immediately called a recess today to plan procedure as a result of the telegram.

In the conference it was decided to put the hearings over until Tuesday, as it is desired to have Castelli take the witness stand before [illegible] others who have been summoned to appear.

It was announced that the following have been called to appear on Tuesday:

George S. [illegible] of Boston, former general counsel for Commonwealth Mutual; John S. PROBE COBBLER DEATH PUZZLE

The death of Henry Sandberg, 55-year-old shoe cobbler in Quincy, has created a mystery that Quincy police were seeking to untangle today.

Four persons have been questioned at the Quincy police headquarters by Chief John J. Avery and Lieut. William Ferrazzi since Sandberg's death in the Quincy City Hospital.

The shoe worker was brought to the Quincy Hospital April 28 suffering from brain and face injuries received either from falling a great distance or being brutally assaulted. During Sandberg's eight days in the hospital the patient could throw no light on the reason for his fatal injuries.

Dr. Fred E. [illegible], Norfolk County medical examiner, performed a post-mortem examination, but could not help the police with any definite theories. The four persons interviewed at Quincy headquarters have been released, but the police are still investigating possibilities of criminal angles in the case.

Ada Dewson to Wed Edward G. Iselin in Milton May 16

By BETTY ALDEN

FROM NOW UNTIL after the leaves turn in the fall is the open season for week-ending . . . and of all the slaves of industry and economic royalists who look forward to a pleasant change, after days in the city and office, New Yorkers seem to be the most fond of their short week-end vacations . . .

The big town offers every variety of fun and entertainment . . . but in the summer its principal charm is the facility of outward bound travel . . .

PRISCILLA GANO

Knowing all this, Ada Dewson and her fiance, "Ned" Iselin, are planning to offer their New York friends, not only a change from humdrum city life, but also a variation from the usual week-end in Jersey or on Long Island . . .

They are planning what might be called a nuptial week-end Saturday and Sunday, May 15 and 16, which will be climaxed by their wedding Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock . . . This ingenuous planning on the part of the prospective bride and groom, gives their friends from out of town, of whom they have legion, a chance to be here for the festivities, and still get back to their jobs conveniently, Monday morning . . .

After the wedding rehearsal in the First Parish Church in Milton, Saturday afternoon the bridal party and out-of-towners will congregate at the Milton home of Elizabeth Johnson for tea . . . following this party, and a quick change into evening finery, they will all adjourn to the Copley-Plaza where the bride's [illegible] and sister Mr. and Mrs. Parkman Dexter Harding [illegible] Dewson, will be hosts at a supper dance . . .

Sunday noon the wedding party will partake of a buffet luncheon at the home of Sarah G. Bradlee of Milton . . . after which there will be a general scramble to change into bridesmaids' frocks and cutaway suits . . .

The prospective bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Dewson of Milton . . . Her father will escort her to the altar and Dr. Vivian Pomeroy and Rev. Frederick J. Gauld will officiate at the ceremony . . .

Sister Will Be Matron of Honor

ADA'S SISTER, Mrs. Parkman D. Harding, will be matron of honor and the bridesmaids are to be the Misses Elisabeth Hamilton, Elizabeth M. Johnson and Sarah G. Bradlee of Milton and Harriet Hawkins of New York and Portland, Oregon . . .

Mr. Iselin will have his brother, Dr. John H. Iselin, Jr., of New York [illegible] and the ushers will include another [illegible] Iselin . . . also a cousin, William I. Fearing of New York, Parkman D. Harding of Milton, Crosby Tuttle[illegible] and Gardner L. Booth, all of New York . . .

The bridegroom [illegible] whose full name is Edward Goodridge Iselin, is the son of the John H. Iselins of Riverdale-on-[illegible] the Ex-Members Association of [illegible] . . . and in the leaves of his [illegible] the names of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] who used to preside over [illegible] . . . JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To American Youth in Aviation

W[illegible] Commander's Note: Below is the third and last [illegible] Miss Georgette "Dick" Meyer, Junior Birdwoman, [illegible] tunnels at M. I. T. Joseph Bicknell collaborated [illegible] with Miss Meyer, who is taking an aero engineering course at M. I. T.

By GEORGETTE "DICK" MEYER

The two largest wind tunnels in use at M. I. T. are of the conventional venturi tube type and the testing procedure in them was described in the second article in this series. Their use is primarily for the determination of lift and drag coefficients and other forces acting upon an airplane in flight.

[illegible] special tunnels must be built for various [illegible] new members to the Tech wind tunnel family [illegible] finished the boundary layer tunnel and the [illegible] tunnel.

from smooth or laminar to turbulent.

The throat of the boundary layer has a smooth one by three feet nickel-plated [illegible] steel on one side. The opposite [illegible] of the throat [illegible] of plywood. The shape of the wood [illegible] [illegible] test. There [illegible] the nickel surface which [illegible] not [illegible] matter how fast [illegible] becomes.

Inserted in the paste are Pitot tubes which measure the velocity of the air stream at various points, thus finding the velocity distribution.

The [illegible] which can be changed [illegible] the apparent angle of attack by means of the plywood wall of the throat [illegible] the speed of the [illegible] by means of a [illegible] eight bladed fan.

The method of measuring the turbulence of entering air is interesting. A current is passed through a tiny platinum wire, heating it. As the stream of air passes over the wire it [illegible]

[illegible] These [illegible] are [illegible] five times before they are apparent [illegible] a scale which can be read by the naked eye.

The boundary layer study is being done for the national advisory committee on aeronautics.

Another tunnel of interest is the one [illegible] for [illegible] instruments.

This tunnel has four throat sections [illegible] before [illegible] through [illegible]

The speed of the air in the smallest throat can be measured by a Pitot tube and the lesser velocities in the preceding chambers can be figured out.

This tunnel is used to calibrate anemometers for the meteorological department and [illegible] as are used by heating engineers. The tunnel can measure air speeds from a few inches to 100 feet per second.

BOSTON after DARK

(Practically nothing at all now surprises the Holland's nurses at St. Elizabeth's, so it comes out yesterday that they do not bat an eye Tue. nite when they hear what they think is George talking to himself, saying his name to himself and then cheering.

GEORGE HOLLAND

It isn't until Nurse Doyle goes into the Holland's stateroom to tell him for-gorsakes-go-to-sleep-this-is-a-hospital that she discovers his radio is on soft and he is listening to this sheet's N. F. T. and the boys at the Night Pink Final party at the Mayfair.)

Poor Little Rich Town:

In the matter of dry-cleaning Brookline's soiled skirts, word reaches this column (Stooge Dept.) that, despite other reports, Police Chief H. Allen Rutherford is due for retirement . . . Powerful townsmen (not pols) believe a new deal all around will benefit everybody through the fresh cards . . . And when the new setup is unveiled, the Stooges are told, Clarence D. McKean, the Hub's No. 1 G-Man, who resigned March 13th to manage the Mass. Claims Committee, will be heading the cops . . . Incidentally, if a former Norfolk County official hadn't died, the name of another Brookline bluecoat, at the time of the incident, would have been handed over in connection with the automobile shakedown racket . . .

Mayoralty Pot Boils:

The low-down on that D. C. parley between Mayor Mansfield and Cong. Higgins and McCormack is that Higgins won't declare as a candidate and that McCormack or Joe Mulhern will be listed, except that McCormack doesn't want to run . . . Anyway, the Dems. want another lad in the field to combat Curley . . . But see if Maurice Tobin doesn't upset things when he goes down Mon. . . . He'll probably withdraw, say the wise lads, if another Dem. is insisted upon . . . And Curley or Bill Foley will walk in . . . All is confusion . . .

Want to Be an Actor:

[illegible] Meredith appearing with Peggy Ashcroft on [illegible] Maxwell Anderson's prize play, "High Tor," [illegible] from a [illegible] . . . Meredith was almost ready [illegible] but curiosity prompted him to [illegible] . . . He reconsidered quickly, however . . . [illegible] was a [illegible] and was well inhabited with buzzers . . . [illegible] he found the accompanying note on the floor [illegible] against opening the gift except by an expert.

Once Over Lightly:

Haler, comptroller for O'Brion-Russell, leaves the 15th for Washington to become sec. to Jim Roosevelt, the President's executive sec. . . . Kenny Baker, the Jack Benny songster, once labored on the Warner Bros. set as a $4 singing extra . . . Now he's on the same lot in the lead of "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air" . . .

If you wanna win a bet tell someone R. I. has capital punishment . . . And you'll be right . . . Gov. Hurley has made Paul Bauer (Lynn skyrider) his official adviser in aeronautics . . . He's the son of ex-Mayor Ralph of Lynn . . . Evening of impersonations on tap Sun. at Bishop-Lee School, 73 Mt. Vernon . . . And the Peabody Playhouse shows "Kind Lady" on the 10th and "Personal Appearance" on the 12th . . .

Mystery of Life: Why are maiden ladies (who've never known the understanding of motherhood) always in those jobs that should have persons with the mother leavening? . . . Such as child welfare, female probation, social service investigators and the like . . . Joe E. Brown (he's the guv'nor's pal) plays a small-town reporter in his present picture, "Riding on Air," now shooting on the RKO-Radio lot in Hollywood . . .

The Walter Winchell-Ben Bernie uproar in celulloid, "Wake Up and Live," broke all records for five yrs. at N. Y.'s Roxy . . . In the first eight days 197,734 persons saw the flicker, an average of [illegible] daily, and 9 p. c. better than the previous high . . . [illegible] at the Paramount and Fenway here . . .

Plymouth police didn't say anything about all the ancient gravestones overturned by vandals in that town when the red paint on Plymouth Rock was discovered . . . Sinclair Weeks, Republican state committee head, has just left Japan for home, due about the 26th . . . He left in Jan. for Australia . . . Carroll Meins, Repub. city committee pres., has been filling in . . . Gert Niesen of the swell pipes (she just closed at the Mayfair) ordered to rest up . . . A lame larynx is the reason . . . After a few dates around here she'll head back for Calif. and more pictures following the rest . . . She's had to cancel an Ed Wynn radio show appearance and a run at N. Y.'s Versailles . . .

Gas House Pal:

Champion of something or other is Johnny Perkins, who opened in the Met stage show today . . . The St. Louis Cards are his pals and obsession, and he sits on their bench . . . He arranges his show dates to hit the towns where the Gas House Gang are currently quarreling . . . But this year he's got a new one . . . When he finishes at the Met he'll go to N. Y. and pick up the Cards again . . . Then he'll take all summer off—to travel with St. L. and sit on the bench . . . In 1934, when the roisterers won the world title, Johnny got a diamond ring along with the rest . . . Today he's invited all the Bees to the show . . . The Cards know his act backwards by now . . .

New Astaire-Rogers Film Gay, Frothy and Tuneful

By PEGGY DOYLE

The new Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers picture, "Shall We Dance," at the Keith Memorial Treater, is a gay, frothy, infectious, elegantly upholstered musical film, ideally suited to the turkish-bath weather we're having. You know, easy on both the eyes and the brain.

The Gershwin brothers come through again with some toe-teasing rhythms as well as an assortment of hummable numbers, several of which, 'Let's Call the Whole Thing Off' and 'They Can't Take That Away From Me," doubtless have been on the tip of your tongue for some time.

Fred Astaire this time surpasses himself in designs for dancing, his super-super one being a solo in the engine-room of an ocean liner when he dances in rhythm with the machinery to the provocative tempo of "Slap That Bass." Another novel is a roller skating sequence with Ginger Rogers, which you ought to try some time with your favorite beau at Moseley's-on-the-Charles. Yes, just TRY it.

• • •

Harriet Hoctor, probably America's leading exponent of the ballet, is partnered with Astaire in still another distinctive dance number. Miss Hoctor's rarely beautiful dancing proves how well adapted ballet dancing is to the camera. Although Mr. Astaire does not dance pure ballet, he and Miss Hoctor have most effectively co-ordinated their totally different types of dancing. The result is too marvelous for words.

Ginger Rogers, in one stunning gown after another, is Linda Keene, musical comedy sensation, in "Shall We Dance." Astaire is Petroff, celebrated Russian ballet dancer, who used to be Pete Peters of Philadelphia.

A rumor that they are secretly married starts the plot a-rolling. It is given momentum by whisperings of an impending blessed event, inspired by the sight of Linda knitting a sweater for her handful of pooch as she reclines in her deck-chair on the huge ocean liner that is taking her and Petroff back to America.

Blore is exceedingly funny, especially delighting the Keith Memorial fans when he puts on a one-man spelling bee trying to spell Susquehanna over the telephone.

Edward Everett Horton, Petroff's manager, also provides plenty of amusement. There is one sequence when Astaire, determined to pursue a flirtation with Ginger without Horton's forbidding chaperonage, does a wavering dance as he adjusts his tie at a mirror that beautifully achieves its purpose—it gets Horton seasick and sends him weaving to his berth.

Ketti Gallian, as the adventuress Lady Tarrington, has a nice scene with Miss Ginger's when the two perfect ladies manage to get into each other's hair without raising their voices or ruffling their permis."

The Dionnes talk on the latest news from Quintland and as revealed in the Metrotone accompanying short feature. The five famous little girls, now three years old, have grown amazingly, and their baby-talk is voiced in quite understandable French.

TIMILTY SEES BUSINESS AID IN 'NO-FIX'

[illegible] Representative Edward P. Barigalupo's charge that the new no-fix parking law has [illegible] Boston Police Commissioner Timilty today declared:

"The no-fix law has not hurt business, but has opened more places for shoppers to park cars, and actually has helped the merchants."

He scored Representative Barigalupo's charge as an apparent effort to inject the mayoralty race into the police department's campaign to relieve traffic in downtown Boston.

FULLER QUITS BOARD

Former Governor Alvan T. Fuller today withdrew from Mayor Mansfield's committee of citizens recently [illegible] to aid in solving Boston's parking problem with the explanation that he is going abroad for an extended period.

"The new no-fix parking law was put into effect at the suggestion of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Board of Trade, Commissioner Timilty said.

"It seems to have proven very successful," he stated.

"I have been in close touch each day with Mr. Charles Coyle of the Chamber of Commerce and Mr. Bloomfield of the Board of Trade.

"They inform me that they are very much pleased with the situation.

LETTERS COSTLY

"In reference to the criticism of Representative Barigalupo relative to sending of registered letters by the police department to law violators, I wish to call his attention to the fact that the law specifies that we must send out registered letters.

"If he would work to have that part of the law stricken out, he would be doing the police department a great favor, as it costs us yearly approximately $12,000.

"I notice that the good Representative is trying to bring the mayoralty campaign into this situation.

"As long as I am commissioner there will be no politics in this department. It is a violation of the rules of the department to take part in a mayoralty campaign, or any other campaign."

* * *

HAS NO MOVING PARTS

NOW, with all the summer ahead, is the time to buy an automatic refrigerator. And an ever-growing army of Bostonians will tell you that the best choice is a Servel Electrolux.

"It never makes a noise," they'll say. "And you save money with it, year after year, on operating cost, food bills and upkeep."

Servel Electrolux is able to bring you this longer, more satisfying service—because of its different, simpler operation. There are no moving parts in its entire freezing system! A tiny gas flame circulates the refrigerant, which produces food-preserving cold and sparkling cubes of ice, unfailingly.

Parts that do not move cannot wear and cause noise, cannot lose their efficiency and increase the cost of operation. Throughout its long life, Servel Electrolux assures the same silent, money-saving refrigeration as it did when new.

See the beautiful 1937 models at any gas company showroom. Learn how easy it is to own a Servel Electrolux on a convenient purchase plan.

MR. HAROLD PHEENY

1962-A Beacon St., Brighton

"Before I ordered automatic refrigerators for my apartments, I made inquiries about all the leading makes. I finally chose the Servel Electrolux, and saved considerable money doing so, for our gas refrigerators have meant an extremely low upkeep cost. Furthermore, I find that tenants are very partial to gas refrigeration because of its low operating cost and silence."

MRS. R. WINIKOR

Home Owner

48 Brighton Ave., Alston

"My husband knows a lot about refrigerators and he says Servel Electrolux has the most efficient operating principle of any he has ever seen. I know that it costs very little to run and it has never given us a moment's trouble since we bought it. But what I like best about our Servel Electrolux is its complete silence."

MRS. I. FOX

Apartment Dweller

66 Arlington Ave., Revere

"When you live in a small apartment, as we do, a silent refrigerator is worth money. I would be glad to pay a little extra every month for our silent Servel Electrolux, but, as a matter of fact, it costs us less to run than any refrigerator we have ever used. It gives us plenty of ice cubes, perfect food protection, and is completely satisfactory in every way."

MR. THEODORE WEBER

Real Estate Operator

Weber Realty Co., Newton

"I have purchased over a hundred Servel Electrolux gas refrigerators for my various properties in Brighton and Newton. These refrigerators have proved of great value. THIS IS LIFE

BY

Robert E. Rogers

To me the most interesting award by the Pulitzer Prize Trustees was that for the best reporting of an important event, the Harvard Tercentenary, won by five New York reporters and press association men. The work involved not only reporting the events of the Tercentenary but the long series of papers given by visiting celebrities, many of them very complex and difficult to expound and explain. It is a pity that a Boston reporter was not named, since the Boston press, being closer to the scene of events, did admirably full and correct work.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The other most no[illegible] of the important awards [illegible] winners, ac[illegible] performances. The great exception, of course, was Margaret M[illegible] With the Wind" as [illegible] award coincided [illegible] with popular sales and critical [illegible] most satisfactory award [illegible] many years.

George S. Kaufman won his second prize for drama, [illegible] collaboration with Moss Hart. Together the two of them had to their credit two satirical successes, "Once in a Lifetime" and "Merrily We Roll Along." Kaufman's other prize [illegible] with Ryskind and the Gershwins, was for "Of Thee I Sing," a [illegible].

Calls Robert Frost America's Chief Poet

Van Wyck Brooks (Harvard, 1907) arrives with a prize for the best historical volumes, this time of literary history, "The Flowering of New England," a study of our literature during the great classic period from 1830 to the Civil War.

And the man who is steadily forging to the front as one of the most noted biographers and [illegible] Allan Nevins [illegible] his award with [illegible] with a second on [illegible] important figure, Ham[illegible] of the present Con[illegible] was an important figure in Grant's [illegible]ration.

For the first time in the Pulitzer Prize's history a woman was given the award for the best foreign correspondence, Anne O'Hara McCormick. That would seem to show how the [illegible] wind is blowing.

The only award of which I have no knowledge is the one on the drama "You Can't Take It With You," by Kaufman and Moss. It has not yet come to Boston. It dates from the end of December in New York and is still going strong.

The [illegible] with the critics who last year offered an independent award of their own seems to have been settled amicably and the critics have as before devoted themselves to boosting Maxwell Anderson as their continued choice for our best dramatist, leaving the Pulitzer Trustees to a wider field of choice.

But there is no doubt that more people are interested in the award for the novel than for that in any branch of letters or journalism. The history of "Gone With the Wind" has been [illegible] extraordinary. Other books, like "The Good Earth" and "Magnificent Obsession," have been best sellers for long periods but "Gone With the Wind" seems to take the cake for extraordinary popularity, as shown not only by its sales ever since it came out but its tremendous power of inspiring general interest and discussion. The interest in the question which woman movie star is going to play Scarlett O'Hara is [illegible]. The part of Rhett Butler is no less a matter of controversy. The characters in "Gone With the Wind" seem literally to have become household words.

I doubt if there is any great dispute over this year's awards. The trustees seem to have accepted the fact that great popularity deserves consideration and that previous recognition should not stand in the way of present award. In the long run a succession of such awards [illegible] emphasize in our American talent the [illegible] examples of writers who can go on year after year doing work which deserves the [illegible] criterion of recognition we at present can [illegible].

'Air Mail Bride' By Hazel Livingston

A Girl Who Found Romance When Mailman Became Cupid's Emissary

CHAPTER ONE

Marie Therese Alexander.

It was a nice name, a romantic name, Marie thought, and she always signed it with a flourish.

The address was nice, too, 657 Dover drive, Hollywood.

It looked exciting, written out.

It wasn't exciting, really. Dover drive was a dusty, hot little street, far from the wide boulevards, the fine homes, the good shops.

Like most of its neighbors 657 had a sign in the window. The sign read "Julie's Beauty Shoppe" and underneath it was another sign, "Circulating Library."

Most of Hollywood had never heard of Dover Drive or Julie's Beauty Shoppe, but if you didn't know your Hollywood, it sounded w[illegible].

When Marie walked up the avenue from the car line, and passed Mrs. Johnson's "Boston Baked Beans" sign and the O'Leary Sisters' "Tap, Toe and Acrobatic Dancing Studio" and the Woodwards' "Carpenter Shop and Tire Repairing" and "Jazz, Classical, Piano, Voice and Banjo" that the new people from Lincoln had put up on the corner, she thought of that.

It was a pleasant enough street, in spite of the signs and the general air of wistful shabbiness.

The houses were all large and comfortable, and though most of the lawns were weedy and yellow, oleanders were spreading tents of pink and rose bloom in the summer and hibiscus grew like weeds.

The Johnson's poinsettias grew twenty feet high and in Marie's own yard the lemon and orange trees flaunted waxy, fragrant buds and blossoms, and the green or yellow, or orange fruit.

Her Secrets

But in spite of the signs and the promised activity, it was a quiet little street, for most of the signs represented hope rather than clients or customers, and except for the Johnson twins and the O'Leary's radio and the Durney's parrot and the mocking birds it was a sleepy little street.

Sitting in the window in the front room, taking care of the "Circulating Library," would have been hopelessly dull business for most young, attractive girls.

But Marie was seldom bored, and never unhappy. She had her own resources, most of them secret.

Right now her big interest in life was the Letter Club. The Letter Club, and a certain Edward Wilson. Hence the emphasis on the sound of things. Her name, the address, Hollywood. Things to write about—to Edward.

They'd been corresponding for a year now.

"It's just a letter friendship," Marie said. "Doesn't mean a thing!"

But she went to see "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" four times, and recommended it to all the library patrons.

"You know it's the love story of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning—the great love that grew out of the letters they wrote each other before they ever met" she explained to the less literary ones.

"Great love — great NONSENSE!" her mother said.

No Romance

But Marie's mother, whose license to run a beauty shop was made out in the name of Julie [illegible] that.

Marie, at 21, had had no romance.

That is none worth mentioning. To Julie, big, aggressive, still handsome, that was equivalent to saying Marie didn't want any.

To Julie, romance, like opportunity, was something to be snatched from a jealous, hostile world. But Marie, who was so unlike the energetic, bustling Julie as to appear not even a distant relation, had never learned to snatch anything. The only opportunity she had ever seized was the Letter Club, and that was with fear and trembling.

It was a dull Saturday night, almost a year ago when her mother and stepfather, whom she called Charlie, had gone to see a movie, and she had volunteered to stay home and tend to the library.

Tired of sitting at her little desk at the window she had wandered into the "back parlor" which was "The Beauty Shoppe."

There it was. Edward's letter:

"WORLD TRAVELLER, AGE 24, BORED WITH HOME-COMING AND CIVILIZATION, WOULD LIKE TO HEAR FROM OTHER BORED SOULS WITH IDEAS. KICKED OUT OF TWO COLLEGES AND THREE [illegible] WILSON, BLUE CREEK RANGER STATION, CALAVERAS COUNTY, CALIFORNIA."

In a page full of "I am a young man of 18"—"I am a girl 21 and am five feet three inches tall and weigh a hundred and thirteen pounds—" a page full of fervent promises to "answer all letters from pen pals" this one stood out, stark and insolent.

She Mailed It

She hadn't meant to answer it. Just to write a letter for fun, and then throw it away.

But she did mail it, and the thing had gone on and on, until now she knew all there was to know about Edward, and he knew all there was to know about her. Well, almost everything. And the letters were part of her life.

"Writing to a man you never set eyes on. I never heard of such silliness!"

Julie sighed whenever she caught sight of one of Edward's air mail letters, or knew that Marie was writing one to him.

But it was a harmless enough diversion, and it was keeping Marie amused and interested, and for that she, who often thought of herself as the hen who hatched a duckling, was prepared to give thanks.

Marie WAS a problem. If she'd been wild, or headstrong, or otherwise inclined to get into trouble, Julie would have known how to handle her.

She still remembered her own girlhood vividly.

But Marie wasn't like that. Marie was different.

She didn't want to do things like other girls. Didn't want to get into pictures. Didn't want to go to a business school, and become an office girl.

A Last Resort

Julie's mother had played in stock for more than 40 years, beginning as the maid in "Zaza" and working through uncounted weeks of ingenue and leading woman roles to a brief success on Broadway, then back to stock and "character woman" and finally mother parts in the first days of the silent pictures.

Julie's father was an actor, and so was her second husband. She herself had worked in pictures. Had done well, until the talkies came in. But her ambition had been to get out of it—to settle down and be comfortable, and secure.

Charlie Bronson wasn't rich, but he was able to give her and [illegible] Marie security. Or he was, until the bottom fell out of things.

After that, to supplement his [illegible]

The circulating library had been for Marie. If a girl didn't want to go into the business world, and didn't want to try to get into pictures, and refused to take an interest in the beauty business, then Julie Bronson had just one more idea, and that was a circulating library.

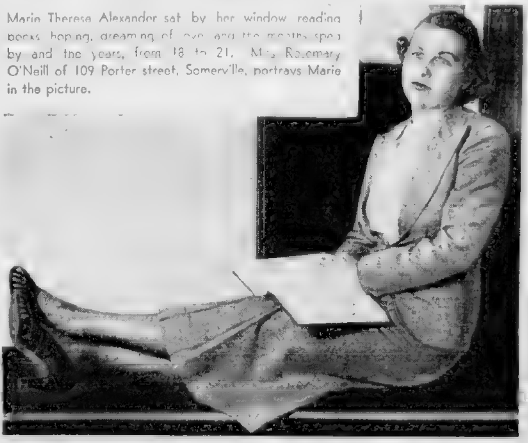
"For you've got to do SOMETHING!" she argued.

Marie had protested a little. She didn't think Charlie ought to put his money into it. Maybe she could find a job in someone else's library instead. Maybe she'd enter the university next fall, and study . . . study something . . .

"What?" Julie and Charlie had asked in chorus.

"Well, I did think of art," Marie said, "and of course there's English—and writing. And I always liked botany, at High—"

So they bought the library, and Marie sat in the window and dreamed and read books, and the months sped by and the years, from 18 to 21.



Marie Therese Alexander sat by her window reading books hoping, dreaming of love and the months sped by and the years, from 18 to 21. Miss Rosemary O'Neill of 109 Porter street, Somerville, portrays Marie in the picture.

Sometimes she thought of making a real try to get into pictures, for the idea held glamor for her. She could never understand Julie's attitude.

What if you did have to starve yourself, and study elocution and work crazy hours, and never know what was next? It would be EXCITING!

But in her heart she knew that it would never be, for if her mother, who had been born to it, and was never afraid [illegible] had found the pace too fast for her, what chance had a girl like she?

The screen executives and casting directors to whom Julie had sent her so confidently three years ago, had never really seen her. They were out of town, or out on location, or in conference. Sometimes she wondered, and was instantly ashamed of her own disloyalty, if they really remembered who Julie Standifer was?

"Go Russian"

The fact that Julie had changed from Julie to Julia, to Juliet and back again, and, even for a brief period, had used her first husband's name, Alexander, didn't make it easier to recall her.

And without an appointment, Marie could never get past the crowds in the waiting room. She didn't have the nerve, and she knew it.

If she had been arrestingly beautiful, or even an oddly unusual type . . .

Her mother's friends had advised her to "go Russian." Directors were crazy about Russians. Marie's father, a big handsome ne'er-do-well Steve Alexander, hadn't been Russian really, though they always spoke of him that way. He had been a Serb.

Marie had inherited his light, green-gold eyes, his ivory skin, his high cheek bones, and remarkably even, small white teeth, but her hair was dark like Julie's, and except for a certain wide-eyed sweetness, and a general air of romance, she wasn't remarkable in a Hollywood where every soda girl, every department store clerk, every beauty shop operator, is a beauty.

And so Marie found her hope, her dream, her future, in the letters from a "pen pal" from Northern California. She loved him. He loved her. They'd marry some day.

Some day he'd know that she wasn't just the Marie Therese of her carefully written letters. Some day he'd know that Dover street was—well, Dover street. And that "my mother who used to be in pictures" is now Julie, of Julie's Beauty Shoppe.

[illegible] strong, that it wouldn't matter. They'd laugh over it, and they'd love each other all the more for it, and grow old together . . .

"Do you remember . . . wasn't it funny? . . . Writing all those years? . . . Of course I never thought that you really thought . . ."

Some day . . . maybe next fall, or next spring.

She would have been sick with apprehension and terror had she known that he was already in town. At that moment thumbing through the telephone book for her number.

* * *

Marie Alexander's usually neat little room was a mess. Bureau drawers were open, tissue paper on the floor, dresses, hats and odds and ends of ribbons, collars, artificial flowers and silk hose draped the bed.

"I Promised"

Marie herself was distraught and tearful. Her small, dark head bristled with tin curlers. Her face glistened with cold cream. With shaking fingers she felt the wet, close waves of her hair above the row of curlers.

"It'll never dry!" she said despondently.

"Not unless you stick it under a drier and stay there for 15 minutes!" her mother returned briskly.

"But I haven't time! How can I take 15 minutes now? When I can't find anything to wear—and I have to be at the Biltmore at 5! I'll never make it. I can't do it—and I can't go with my hair all wet!"

Julie picked up a faded blue cotton kimona, and held it out. "Now you go right downstairs and get under that drier and stay there till I tell you to come out. You have PLENTY of time. Besides, it's a good idea to keep him waiting. They like it."

"No! I can't be late. I promised, and I've got to be there!"

"All right, you'll be there. Charlie will drive you. Now, for heaven's sake, go and get DRY!"

Charlie Bronson drove the car into the garage in the rear of the lot, lumbered up the backstairs with his purchases, which he deposited [illegible] on the kitchen table.

"There's your stuff," he said, counting over the paper bags with a stubby finger. "Oranges, cauliflower, avocados, lemon pie 'n' pork chops."

"Wait," Julie said. "Where are you going?"

He Guessed

"Nowhere. Just going to read the paper, and smoke my pipe. Why? Did I forget something?"

Julie eyed his middle-aged hulk with diffidence. He was always so good-natured, and she hated to ask him to do things for Marie. Marie was her [illegible], and her problem.

"Honey, I hate to ask you . . . but you've got to drive Marie over to the Biltmore. She's got this date, and she's all to pieces over it, so I told her I'd—"

"You told her you'd tell Charlie to drive her over, eh?"

"Well, what else could I do? Honestly, she's just about crazy. She's in there drying her hair now, though it was only washed Saturday, and I told her it didn't need it. My Lord, you'd think she was getting ready for a screen test. If De Mille was going to put on 'Romeo and Juliet' with her in the lead she couldn't be more—"

"O. K." Charlie said. His broad flat face was creased with silent laughter. He jerked with a thumb in the direction of the "beauty shoppe." "But what's the cause of all the excitement? The 'Pen Pal' arrive in town?"

"Oh, CHARLIE! How did you guess it? You always guess everything!"

DOCTOR HOLDS HOPE FOR 'BABE IN WOODS'

W[illegible], May 6 [illegible] Winona [illegible] condition had so improved today she was removed from the oxygen tent for two hours.

Heartened by the general improvement in the child's condition, Dr. John J. Bouvier, her attending physician announced:

"Winona has been retaining all fluids and medications. Her general condition is improving. The convulsive movements have decreased perceptibly and the whole picture is more hopeful."

Dr. Bouvier stated the child was removed from the oxygen tent for the first time since she was found after being lost for four days and five nights in the [illegible] woods a mile from her home.

In a semi-comatose condition most of the time, the periods of coma are reducing rapidly and though attending physicians last night gave her only a 10 per cent [illegible]

English High Has Reunion May 12th

Officials of the state and city and members of the Boston School Committee have accepted invitations to attend a reunion of the English High School Association, Wednesday evening, May 12, in the school cafeteria, Montgomery st.

It will be the first time that the new school cafeteria, recently completed at a cost of $125,000, will be used as a meeting place for members of the alumni.

TEACHERS PLAN PLEA FOR JOBS

[illegible] solution of the club's problem.

The club, composed of young women who have been out of Teachers College from four to 10 years and have not been appointed to steady work, will request that Boston create new positions in grades 1 to 4.

These positions are to be designated as "junior elementary assistants," under the plan drawn up by the club, and will be filled according to rating. The plea was formulated after the club, representing [illegible] from certain organizations.

In the recent school committee investigations members of this club testified they had been offered aid and positions in Boston schools for financial considerations.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

BY

Marjorie McBride

Twelve blind persons living in Massachusetts are using dogs supplied through "The Seeing Eye" as guides, companions and friends. Among them are a Radcliffe [illegible] girl and a boy attending Harvard. Both are brilliant students.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

There are two other students in the metropolitan area using dogs in their war against lifelong darkness . . . also, two housewives, one employe of a workshop for the blind, one who does handicraft work at home, a teacher, a minister, a blind man who builds bird houses, and only one who is not employed at all.

That's a small percentage of the blind in the Commonwealth, according to Charles E. Cotting, Boston chairman for "The Seeing Eye." However, the public is just getting educated to the use of specially trained dogs for [illegible].

Furthermore, not every blind person can use a dog guide. Some are afraid of dogs. Some are too young, some too old. Backers of the movement, which started in Morristown, N. J., in 1929, estimate there are 10,000 blind in the country who could and eventually will employ dog guides. It is the ambition of the enthusiasts to see they have them.

Female of Species Prove Expert in Traffic

German shepherd dogs are used for this work of mercy, and usually they are females. There are several hundreds of them at work throughout the country, and their record is superb. They're safer guides and bodyguards than men.

Properly trained dogs exhibit uncanny intelligence. Simple commands like "right," "left" or "forward" are easy for them. They judge traffic as shrewdly as a traffic policeman. They are much smarter and more wary at intersections than human pedestrians.

Possession of these magnificent animals has restored many a workman, business or professional man to economic independence. The greatest service they perform is the rebuilding of the morale of a blind person, living in his lonely world.

If you have a one-act play in your system and can get it on paper before May 15, mail it to Charles Parkhurst of the "Brother Rat" company at the Plymouth Theater.

Besides being an actor, Parkhurst is active in the Actors' Repertory Theater of New York and is chairman of a committee to select a one-acter for production in Manhattan in June. It must be on an American subject.

In making his selection from manuscripts submitted hereabouts, Parkhurst will be assisted by Instructor Frank Cheney Hersey and Librarian Lillian Hall of Harvard.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

Exercise Is Only Way to Keep Hipline Smooth

By IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright [illegible], King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

EXTRA hip inches are unflattering to any figure, fat or slim, tall or short, blonde or brunette.

Because the hip measurement can spread at the rate of one and one-half inches in a year, and because modern living makes it so difficult to keep a slim hipline, this measurement is the besetting feminine worry.

E[illegible] in slimming down one measurement your weight continues to be the key to your figure program. If you are normal weight with a hipline [illegible] out of proportion [illegible] the mistake of dieting to reduce your [illegible] to symmetry.

You must alter your hipline without [illegible] any weight [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] is the wrong [illegible] for a problem [illegible] caused by less exercise than [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

[illegible] however, [illegible] [illegible] exercise [illegible] remove extra inches from curves where they are needed.

Since all of you need exercise for the hips, you will find the two following exercises effective introductory measures for slimming this portion of the figure.

Movement: Transfer all the weight to the right knee and slowly stretch the left leg straight out behind. Flex the knee and raise the leg high in air. Return to original position [illegible] repeat five times before [illegible] to the other leg.

Movement: With one leg on floor, raise the other straight up in air. Try not to bend the knee. Now, with the raised leg describe circles moving the leg from the hip. Circle three or four times, return leg to floor, and repeat with other leg. Gradually increase the number of times and size of the circles described.

Exercise more suited to your particular problems will be found in the leaflets, "Hips, Hips Away," "The Business Girl's Lazy Half Dozen" and "Rolling Exercises." Corrective exercises will make your figure slim and youthful.

Send for the leaflet or leaflets of hip exercises you prefer, enclosing a stamped addressed envelope with your request. For more than one leaflet, enclose a large envelope and be sure to address Ida Jean Kain, Boston Evening American.

Good Manners

HOUSEWARMING

DEAR MRS. BLECKMAN:

1—A very dear friend of mine has just moved into her home which she had built, and I would like to give her a surprise housewarming. Is it proper, or is it up to her to give the housewarming?

2. Should everybody invited bring a gift? G.

1—A housewarming is usually given by the host and hostess of the new home. But it is thoroughly proper too for a friend or a group of friends to give the housewarming.

However, I'm not so enthusiastic [illegible] and I'm sure that the hostess is apt not to be either [illegible] about your planning a surprise housewarming. The new house for its housewarming, must be in show-off order, every corner, every closet, spic-and-span, ready for the closest inspection of the guests.

Now all hostesses, especially hostesses of new homes, know that there are times when a home may not be in that much-to-be-desired status. If a group of friends arrives at this inopportune moment there may be an embarrassment that will cloud the party. So why not take the hostess into your confidence, ask her what day and time will be most convenient? This seems [illegible] wiser to me.

2. Bringing a gift to a housewarming is entirely a matter of choice. But it is a generous and pleasant gesture for a guest to make to the new home and to its owners.

Woman Explorer

Leave the scattered bouquet prints, the wildly scattered, lushly flowered confections—leave them all alone if your chief interest is a bit of streamlining here and there. But do try this budget silk print with its tiny jacket, the new straight as a soda straw skirt, and the smart high neck. Navy blue with grosgrain trimming and a shady mushroom straw that'll fit into any summer scheme at all. Miss Betsy Shrigley models this Fashion Congress winner. Household Hints

SAVE YOUR STEPS

If you have a two or three-story house why not keep two or three sets of cleaning equipment? Just remember that three brooms will last three times as long as one. And just think of the steps that can be saved by having equipment on each floor.

RUST PREVENTIVE

A coat of shellac on the inside of the garbage pail or waste baskets subject to damp articles will prevent rust and make them easier to clean.

WALLPAPER PATCHES

After papering a room, tack up a piece of the new wallpaper in the attic. The paper will then age and tone down to the same degree as that on the wall and match perfectly if an accident makes a patch necessary.

Flower-Fresh Carnation Perfume

An Ideal Tribute to Mother

By ARLINE GOULD

FOR more years than we care to remember, the fragrance of carnations has been a favorite with mothers the wide world over.

What then could be more in keeping with the spirit and sentiment of Mother's Day than a carnation perfume—spicy and vivid as the crimson flower itself?

As a gift suggestion for this particular day—May 9th—we offer you a new carnation perfume [illegible] lush with fragrance from the very hearts of these velvet-[illegible] blossoms.

Aside from tradition, the [illegible] of carnations has the [illegible] that make it an ideal tribute to a mother. [illegible] as a heart-beat [illegible] [illegible] as a wish, its lovely pulsating fragrance is as [illegible] as a [illegible] spirit.

Not only will a gift of this perfume commemorate the day "For Her," but it will continue to lavish its delicious fragrance for the enjoyments of all the after-days of the season.

[illegible] store in Boston. It is presented in [illegible] purse flacons of one dram (very inexpensive) and also in half-ounce and ounce bottles.

To learn the name of this exquisite new carnation perfume—the perfect gift for Mother's Day—call Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Selecting the Right Contract

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

One of the heritages with which we have been cursed from old Auction days is the dislike of a minor suit contract for game going purposes.

Let us carefully consider the implications of the bidding that took place in today's hand.

South dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

North: ♠ A 10 7 ♡ Q 9 4 ◇ K J 10 7 ♣ Q 7 2

West: ♠ J 9 5 4 ♡ A J 9 2 ◇ 8 3 2 ♣ J 8

East: ♠ K Q 8 3 2 ♡ 10 8 3 ◇ A 5 ♣ 10 9 6

South: ♠ 6 ♡ K 7 6 ◇ Q 9 6 4 ♣ A K 5 4 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	1 ♠
2 ◇	2 ♠	2 N T	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

The two bids that are highly important in this discussion are North's two notrump and South's three notrump. Let us take them up in order.

After his partner's opening bid and free raise of the diamond response North has no conceivable rebid except the one actually made, namely two notrump. True, the opponents have bid and supported Spades and North has only one stopper in the suit but this may be ample to insure nine tricks at notrump.

Moreover, if South holds even the guarded jack of spades, North's A 10-x becomes a double stopper. North's two notrump bid does not guarantee two spade stoppers and for that very reason must be considered as a tentative or exploratory bid.

Now let us appraise South's three notrump bid. South should not depend on North for two spade stoppers. There is no reason to assume that North's one diamond response showed such a suit as A K x x x, but even if he had that holding and a spade stopper only eight tricks were visible (five diamonds, two clubs and one spade). South had already shown a pretty good hand by the combination of his opening bid and his immediate free raise.

Whatever he did in the future could not efface the message already conveyed and therefore, South should have taken action over the two notrump bid that would be of a less definite, less final nature. Three diamonds would have expressed his holding and intimated his fear of notrump.

North then would have supported the clubs and South, on the assumption that a 4-4 diamond suit would be better as trump than a 5-3 club suit, should go back to diamonds, with five diamonds the final contract. Obviously, three notrump was doomed to defeat, whereas five diamonds could not be defeated except by the unlikely heart opening.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Little Home All One's Own One of Greatest Joys Life Can Offer

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

[illegible] thing that I especially like about Governor [illegible] thing that I am sure most people also [illegible]

[illegible] to make home owning popular and [illegible] and other average citizens.

I am with the governor 100 per cent in his championship of the small home and I shall do all I can to urge my readers to take the road to happiness.

I wish those fortunate readers who have built houses in the past few years would write me. Having a little home of my own I know what a pleasure theirs must be to them. The letters I receive I shall publish from time to time, so that others may read and enjoy them.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX
My [illegible] works for a certain [illegible] which has had enough [illegible] because of the [illegible] financial difficulties. [illegible] I have been more than [illegible] keeping him on, to [illegible]

[illegible] gratitude to these [illegible] the bosses above my [illegible] would it be proper to give a big dinner and have them and their wives or what would you suggest as a way of showing our gratitude?

RUTH.

DEAR RUTH
[illegible] to your first question [illegible] me say that to [illegible] big dinner which would [illegible] your husband's bosses and their wives might seem like [illegible] and visible sign [illegible] that it might [illegible]

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX
He used to come to see me every [illegible] and said he loved me very much. I declined to kiss him as I do not believe in promiscuous kissing when you are not engaged.

[illegible] I received a letter in which he asked me to return his [illegible]

[illegible] has he changed [illegible] And [illegible] I send [illegible]

[illegible] better not to [illegible] and keep the [illegible]

[illegible] whom [illegible] when he comes home on a [illegible] He is considered the [illegible] boy in this town.

[illegible] afraid he may turn out like the boy who asked to have [illegible] returned.

DEAR CHILD
There is no way of telling, even if one were a professional [illegible] whether one boy will turn out like another.

[illegible] a chance every girl has [illegible]

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX
[illegible] I read a piece [illegible] that said [illegible] would bring back [illegible] and Heaven grant [illegible]

I [illegible] sick of the young [illegible] of both sexes who [illegible] to our house to see my sons [illegible] that I'd gladly welcome the return of hoopskirts [illegible] to count [illegible]

DEAR FRIEND
[illegible] that I too lament the [illegible] of manners as we [illegible] knew them.

I think that a few manners [illegible] would make girls [illegible] of today even more [illegible] than they really are.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX
I [illegible] years old and would [illegible] married a long time [illegible] business and family [illegible] were in no shape for it.

[illegible] years ago I was in [illegible] We started going [illegible] in a while, [illegible] her I loved her.

[illegible] was going "steady" [illegible] and [illegible]

[illegible] she and this other [illegible] and she says [illegible] of marrying [illegible] at least two years [illegible] the permission to [illegible] her.

I [illegible] has this boy [illegible] and I'm wondering [illegible] with this [illegible] not see her at all.

BILL.

DEAR BILL
[illegible] frank with you I [illegible] the young lady has [illegible] much to go on [illegible]

[illegible] if your family and [illegible] have been [illegible]

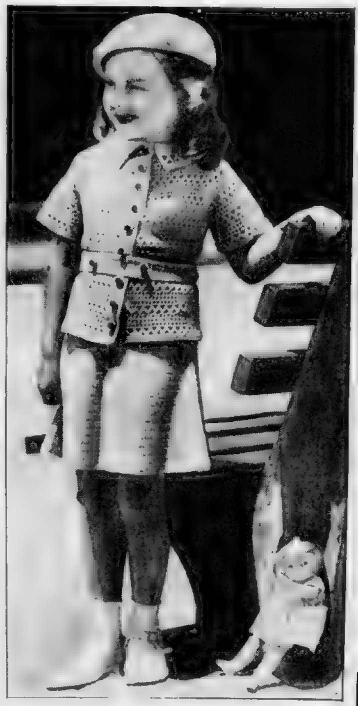
Accent on Youth



IN YOUR anxiety to get all togged out in the season's irrisistibly cool and heavenly hand-knits . . . your own creations, of course . . . don't overlook the little gadabouts of the family. It's the sub sub-deb who will show them off even better than your grown-up self.

Here is one, a demure two-piece crocheted suit that features an interesting and clever new design. Nine tiny knit buttons in a deep shade called rhumba red . . . march down the front of the jacket. There's a cute little belt, too—held together by these self same buttons. Any four-year-old will go for the cool comfort of this affair, particularly if you choose such a combination as frosting-pink and rhumba red.

You may have knitting directions for this little crocheted suit simply by writing to Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Boston Evening American, and inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

New Time Saving Suggestions

By MARTHA LEE

WE'VE been wondering if some helpful household suggestions wouldn't be in order during these spring housecleaning days?

[illegible] glass vases? [illegible]

[illegible] hard water marks from glassware rub with a [illegible] wash in vinegar rinse in warm water and the glasses [illegible] will shine like new.

Or would you like to know how to move heavy furniture alone? Fold a piece of cloth [illegible] under the [illegible] of furniture and slide [illegible] wherever you wish. It saves [illegible] floors as well.

The Homemakers' Exchange offers two grand party [illegible] [illegible] children [illegible] before they leave [illegible] and clowns [illegible] Merry-go-round. Cake would put them in the proper spirit.

Make a plain [illegible] cake [illegible] with your favorite frosting. Or [illegible] in the center of the cake stand a peppermint stick. Take animal crackers and dip half of them in red frosting and the remaining half in white frosting. Place the animal crackers in the frosting on the cake like a merry-go-round. Then fasten red and white ribbons on the stick candy pole. The children will simply adore such a novel cake.

EDIBLE CANDLE HOLDERS

When you make a birthday cake [illegible] try using large gum drops for [illegible] holders. Make holes for the candles by removing [illegible] from a pencil and pressing the metal into (but not entirely through) the gum drops. Beautiful color schemes may be worked out and best of all when the candles are blown out, the holders are good to eat.

Sulphur and Molasses Time

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

NOT so much now, but it used to be the practice to take a "spring tonic." Behind every old-fashioned notion there is usually a germ of truth.

At this time of the year all of us are more or less in need of some sort of tonic. The virtue of the practice lies in the choice of that tonic.

Grandmother used to [illegible] her ration of spring medicine which consisted of sulphur and molasses plus some other bitter tasting substance to make the [illegible] home [illegible]

[illegible] for the old [illegible] emphasis is placed upon [illegible] and the need for an abundance of fresh fruits, vegetables, cereals, butter, eggs and milk.

At this period of the year it is a good plan to take the young child to the doctor for a complete overhauling. This is particularly important for the youngster who had frequent colds and sore throats during the winter months. If the tonsils are large and diseased, they should be removed.

The adult as well as the young child, should be subjected to a complete overhauling at this time of the year. After a long and tedious winter it is well to take inventory of your health. In addition to a visit to [illegible] your dentist.

Diz May Pop Off, But He Can Pitch | Most Colorful Since Babe Ruth

By JACK CONWAY

DIZZY DEAN is the only ball player who oozes the kind of color that made Babe Ruth baseball's greatest attraction.

Dizzy told those persons at the Night Pink Final dinner at the Club Mayfair that he would stand the Bees on their heads, and avenge the defeat suffered by his club in the opening game of the series. He then made good.

MR. BOSTON

Of course he had the support of a terrific batting attack by members of the Gas House gang, but even if St. Louis runs had not been so plentiful Dizzy would probably have turned on enough steam to win anyway.

I like cocky, confident athletes of the Dean type. They have implicit belief in their own ability, and they do not mince words telling how good they are.

Ruth was that way when he first blasted his way to f[illegible] with the Red Sox. When a young reporter, I ran [illegible] news syndicate with Ruth. We called it the [illegible] New Service as we were both sure Babe would become the greatest star in baseball.

"You can tell our readers," Babe said to me one day, "that I'll crack every home run record ever made in league baseball.

"I'm going to quit pitching so that I can keep in the game every day. You have to be in there swinging every day if you are going to do your best at the bat."

Ruth was in the lineup for only half a game when a runner tried to score from second on a single to left field. Babe caught the ball on the first hop and pegged out the runner at home on a perfect throw.

Ruth still insisted his arm hurt him when he tried to pitch, and so he remained in the outfield to become a super-star.

DEAN'S SPIRIT AIDS CARDS

DEAN'S SPIRIT as well as his remarkable pitching has had much to do with the success of the Cardinals. He fires the other players with the thought they can defeat any club in the league.

"Pepper" Martin is Dean's first lieutenant. Martin has won all the honors that go to members in good standing of the Gas House Gang. He rides everybody on the club, including his pal Diz and Manager Frankie Frisch.

These rough riding ball players usually force the breaks in their favor in close games. They are always trying, and when the opposition lets down for a second they crash through with a victory.

Ducky Medwick's hitting has been a powerful factor in the [illegible] of the Cardinals. His ability to get extra base hits makes him one of the most valuable players in the league.

The great batters in my opinion are those who get more than their share of doubles, triples and home runs. There isn't anything more demoralizing to an opposing pitcher than to have a fellow like Medwick crack out a triple or a home run with men on the bases.

* * *

CASE OF PAUL DEAN

THE FAILURE of the Cardinals to win the pennant last year was due chiefly to the collapse of Paul Dean. An injured arm put Paul out of the game.

In former flag fights, Diz and Daffy were always eager to pitch overtime if necessary to keep the clan of Frisch out front.

The doctors now say Paul's trouble is due to a chipped bone in his shoulder. The pitcher consented to an operation, and if it is successful Diz will receive some real flinging support.

Bill McKechnie of the Bees recognizes the power in the Cardinals but he doesn't believe they will win the pennant.

"The Giants are the club one must beat to win the National League flag," said Bill. "I believe Pittsburgh had

Marcum Pitches For Sox Today In St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo., May 6—Boston's Red Sox and St. Louis Browns close their short series here this afternoon with Johnny Marcum pitching for the invaders and Les Tietje or Jim Walkup for the home side.

It was Rube Walberg's turn to work the postponed mid-week game, but Manager Joe Cronin has decided to save the southpaw until the Cleveland series starts Sunday, mainly because the Browns' strength lies in their right-handed batters.

Marcum has been pitching winning ball for the Sox, and Cronin believes he will be a better choice today than Walberg.

Immediately after the game the Sox will move on to Chicago for Friday and Saturday games.

Lefty Grove, who has been ailing, will be ready to work in Cleveland, Cronin says.

Cards Club Turner To Explode Dixie Complex Theory

National League Field, May 6—The final game between the Bees and the St. Louis Cardinals, scheduled here this afternoon, has been postponed because of rain and wet grounds.

By JOE CASHMAN

Some of the smarter baseball minds rate it a very unwise practice for clubs in the same league to meet one another in exhibition games during spring training.

Eddie Collins, for instance, has announced he will not permit the Red Sox to play American League foes in the South next year.

The objection is based on a theory that intra-league foes often acquire a superiority or inferiority complex that prevails all season as a result of happenings in Grapefruit League competition.

Maybe there's something to the theory, but recent happenings at the Hive tend to indicate that it's all wet.

Weir's Case

We recall the day Billy Weir stepped out against the Giants down at St. Pete this Spring. The Terry men pounded out five runs before the Bees' brilliant young southpaw could get anybody but himself out.

According to the theory, he should be a soft touch for the New Yorkers on his every appearance against them.

Well, he was so soft for the champions on Monday last that he yielded just six scattered hits in nine innings as he turned them back, 3 to 1, in the deciding game of the series.

And we recall, too, that shortly after the Giants had shellacked Melrose Bill the Cardinals came to town, and pitching the final four innings of that game for the Bees was Jim Turner.

All the Indianapolis rookie did on that occasion was to set down the first 11 Cards to face him, pitch to only 13 batters in four scoreless frames and win his own game with a home run.

So when Mr. Turner faced the Gas House Gang up at the Hive yesterday he should have been a cinch. He was, too, for the Cardinals.

The most helpless looking Card against Jim down on Waterfront Park was Joe Medwick. He went down swinging like a Bloomer Girl every time he faced that crossfire of the Bees' bowman.

It was the [illegible] Wacky who stepped [illegible] the same [illegible] of the [illegible]

With [illegible] Jerome "Dizzy" Dean [illegible]

Jerome was at his dizziest and at his best before the big crowd, at least half of which had turned out just to see him. He gave only six hits and struck out 11 of our heroes. He called his infielders into conference every time he allowed a base hit.

He asked his bench warming

Nine Winners in 2 Days

Dave Wilson Still Rules Roost

His other winners were Baby Sweep, $9.40; My Blonde, $6.50, and Sir Rollie, $10.00.

Wilson has picked nine winners in the past two days. He scored with five winners Tuesday, including the daily double. This is a record worth recording.

DAVE WILSON

Hit Daily Double Two Days Back

Wilson's Best Bets, with one exception, have won every day since the opening of the New England season.

Wilson knows his horses and the people identified with the sport. He is out there every day of the year, whether it is New England, Maryland or Florida.

He is on the scene of action, daily, from early morn to the last race in the afternoon.

Ruffing Dons Uniform in Detroit

Detroit, May 6—Charley (Red) Ruffing, holdout pitcher of the New York Yankees, put on a uniform again today after reaching an agreement on a 1937 contract in which his baseball club made no concessions.

Preparing to work out with the Yanks today, Ruffing said he would sign a [illegible] contract as soon as [illegible] Commissioner [illegible] McCarthy [illegible] personally.

Ruffing, the Yanks' only 20-game pitching winner last year, agreed to a $15,000 salary, but will be docked for the time lost so far this season. The club offered him $15,000 several weeks ago, but he held out for $18,000.

"Red'll be ready to pitch in a week's time," Joe McCarthy said after announcing that the big fellow had come to terms.

"He'll pitch batting practice for a couple of days and then I'll shove him in there to finish a couple regular games. He's a work horse, that guy. He'll be okay. He's in good shape.

"I think it was very sporting of Colonel Ruppert to let me put Red on the payroll right away," McCarthy went on.

"If he had said 'wait 'till he's ready to pitch,' Ruffing probably would have hurt himself trying to get into shape in a hurry, and we all would have suffered.

"Red was okay to talk to. He wasn't sore. He just felt he was worth $18,000, but when he saw that the club had no intention of giving it to him, he gave up."

[illegible] thing was [illegible]

"I'm going to forget about all that, and think about some pitching," he told reporters. "We got a pennant to win."

Sox Manager In Third Place

By The Associated Press

Joe Cronin, Boston Red Sox manager, returned to [illegible] possession of [illegible] place in the American League batting race yesterday with [illegible] a hit [illegible] retained a .421 average because of the rain which washed out the Red Sox game while Gee Walker of the White Sox, tied [illegible] the day before, fell six points by getting only one hit in three chances.

All other places in [illegible] big six in batting remained unchanged, although all three [illegible] in the National League [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] by getting [illegible] chances.

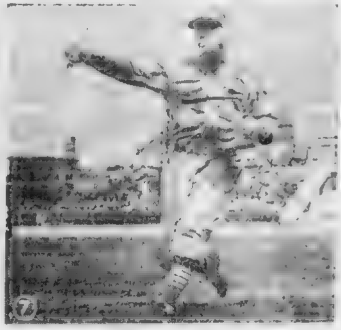
Detroit, May 6 (US)—George Selkirk's b[illegible] and Monte Pearson's arm c[illegible] to give the New York Yankees a 7-3 verdict over the Detroit Tigers. It was the second straight win of the series for the Yanks.

Selkirk paced a 12-hit Yankee attack with a pair of home runs, a double and a single for a perfect day at bat, and drove in four runs while scoring three himself.



"He won't see it"

Cardinals ace, Dizzy Dean, gives himself a little fight talk as he blinds the Bees batters at the Hive. He gave the Bees only six hits, fanned 11 and won, 13-1. It was Dizzy's fourth victory of the season against no defeats, and it was only the second run that has been scored on him.

Pro Elite To Play Here

By BILL GRIMES

Just as soon as they learned that Charlie Draper and Ted B[illegible] have offered a purse of $1[illegible] for the first Inter[illegible] [illegible] Open Match play [illegible] [illegible] at Belmont Country Club from September 22 to 28, the [illegible] professionals of this country and many foreign luminaries reached for their engagement [illegible] and made entries "Reserved for Belmont."

Since he joined the professional ranks Lawson Little has climbed on the [illegible]-Sarazen band wagon [illegible] that the [illegible] P. G. A. championships.

Although Draper and Babcock are financing the international open match play championship and have posted the $12,000 purse, it wasn't until they had received the assurance of Freddie Corcoran that the P. They did not finance the International Open Play championship with the idea of making a [illegible], for they have agreed to donate to any worthy charity [illegible] received in excess of the amount they have invested.

Richest Tourney

There isn't a tournament on the P. G. A. schedule that has offered as much as will be at stake at Belmont. The Chicago open [illegible] is second to the International Open.

Until the P. G. A. received the $12,000 offer from Draper and Babcock, the limit was $10,000, and it required a special meeting to sanction the $2000 increase.

In the past, Belmont has always been ready and willing to do its part toward the promotion of the Royal and Ancient game.

It was at Belmont in 1916 that the largest gallery ever to follow a match turned out to watch the late Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, two of the greatest of all time British professionals, play Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford.

Then, too, the women's national championship has been played at Belmont as well as the state amateur and open and the juniors.

Last fall, the Belmont Country Club donated its course for an exhibition match in which Jimmy Thomson and Lawson Little played Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford for the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund.

Spain Chairman

Herman C. Spain, one of the most prominent members of the Belmont Country Club, has been made general chairman and within a fortnight committees will be appointed.

Realizing the enormity of the undertaking, Chairman Spain hopes to be able to induce the best golf authorities in this section to serve on his committees, regardless of their club affiliations.

Charles E. Mason and Charles E. Cross, presidents of the Massachusetts Golf Association, were among the first to offer their services.

All professionals whether or not [illegible] members of the P. G. A. will be eligible to enter the International Open, but amateurs will be restricted to five and [illegible] [illegible]

SHAUGHNESSY IN EXHIBITION

Dick Shaughnessy, state and national skeet shooting champion, will display his amazing ability at the Ard Righ Horse Show at the estate of Mrs. Edward Donnelly in Dover on May 15, in aid of the Sacred Heart Church, Newton Center.

Shaughnessy is one of the best shots in this country and will show how he does it.

W. G. (Billy) Hill, a crack rifle shot, will also give exhibitions of aerial shooting.

Mrs. Teresa C. Goldish and Robert Campbell will give an exhibition of archery.

Campbell is the Massachusetts State junior champion, [illegible] national junior champion and is also the champion of most of the leading archery clubs in Massachusetts.

[illegible] of the horse show committee [illegible] he has received a large number of entries and that the horse show [illegible] prove a great success.

There will be $1[illegible] in prizes as well as the usual ribbons.

Mrs. H. T. [illegible], Mrs. Anna M. [illegible] [illegible] Thomas [illegible], Mrs. Margaret [illegible] [illegible] Harry Fagan, James [illegible] [illegible]

Middlesex Team Faces Northern

During the first half of the Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts team match championship, the Middlesex District overpowered four of its five opponents, losing only to The Country Club, and swings into the home stretch with a one match lead over Central, Southern and Midland.

Today at the Belmont Country Club, Middlesex is playing the Northern District, which has not won a single match in five starts and so does not appear to have even an outside chance of producing the biggest upset in year.

[illegible] four or five [illegible] who have been participating in district team matches [illegible] too long to take [illegible] there's little [illegible] that the Middlesex players [illegible] superiority com[illegible]

Both Middlesex and Northern will field stronger teams than those that represented them in their last [illegible] Rosamond Vahey, former state champion, will be in the Middlesex lineup, and Grace English will play for Northern.

Central District, which did not meet with a setback into the fourth round, is playing The Country Club at Brookline and strongly favored to chalk up another victory over the defending champions, but it's doubtful if the margin will be as wide as that of two weeks ago when the Clyde Park team was swamped, 8 to 1.

With only four matches to be played after today, Central cannot afford to lose if it is to remain in the running for the title.

Either Southern or Midland will be practically eliminated today at Brae Burn. They are deadlocked in a three-cornered tie with Central for second place, and the loser will step out of the picture.

In the first round, Midland stopped Southern, 6 to 3, at Thorny Lea and, with its team at full strength for the second meeting today, has high hopes of repeating.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

ANN MARSTERS

Ann Marsters, girl handicapper, today picked REAL JAM to win the third race at Narragansett Park, while she named LITTLE DINAH to show the way in the fourth race.

Both of these horses have been rested up for today's races and are expected to show at their best.

Zoic ran into difficulties in yesterday's race. The horse which raced Mucho Gusto down to the wire on opening day was in third place at the finish wire.

Chambersburger, the second Ann Marsters selection, finished third to Bulstrode and Black Scout in the eighth race.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS
$2 Win, Real Jam, Narragansett 3rd
$2 Win, Little Dinah, Narragansett 4th
BANKROLL NOW $486.80. DAY'S PLAY $4

Miss Marsters is trying to prove that by conservative betting it is possible to beat the races provided one wagers on only two races a day.

Miss Marsters has accepted an offer of $1,000 from Walter O'Hara to conduct a novel betting experiment.

Under the terms of the O'Hara offer, $500 was donated at once to the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser.

The other $500 is being used as a betting stake by Miss Marsters, and the balance of the fund will be turned over to the Basket Fund at the end of the experiment.

the best chance to accomplish this result."

McKechnie, of course, is pleased with the showing made by the Bees so far this season. He contends the club will display a better batting punch when Wally Berger returns to the lineup. The home run hitter is still nursing a broken finger.

The Bees have exceptionally good defensive strength. If they get fair pitching and develop some batting punch they will make a creditable showing in this year's flag fight.

DAN GURNETT expects that the Agawam race meeting, which will open on May 29, will show a profit of $30,000 and that the second meeting of the Agawam track will do as well . . . There has been a 20 per cent pickup in betting and attendance figures at all race tracks, and Agawam is certain to get its share of the increased business . . . Agawam has three first class stewards in George Brown, Jr., William H. Ensign and Wilmer Brinton, Jr. . . . Homer Rainault of Holyoke and George Mulligan of Waterbury will assist Col. Dave Egan in sounding the Agawam ballyhoo . . . Rainault has conducted successful boxing and wrestling clubs, and figures racing will prove a tip-over for him . . . It may, provided he doesn't bet on any of Col. Egan's selections.

Cliff Olsen, Minnesota heavyweight, has been signed to collide with Cy W[illegible] in the feature mat bout at Eddie Quinn's show at Mechanics Building on next Tuesday night . . .

Matchmaker "Rip" Valenti has offered Max Schmeling $50,000 to meet Al McCoy in Boston . . . Schmeling is still hopeful of getting a title match with Jimmy Braddock in June, but if that contest falls through he may agree to take on McCoy . . . I think McCoy would be a cinch to defeat Schmeling or Braddock . . . Joe Louis is the only heavyweight capable of giving McCoy serious opposition.

PIRATE Scout Okayed VINCE

THEN CHANGED HIS MIND

(This is the fifth of a series of articles by Vince DiMaggio, Bees' rookie sensation, on how he made the big league grade.)

By VINCE DiMAGGIO
(As told to Joe Cashman)

I married Madelina Christani right after coming home at the close of the 1933 season, and all that winter I visioned having a 1934 record with Hollywood which would gain me a crack at big league gold and glory.

But that wasn't to be.

On the contrary, I had my poorest season ever on the Coast. I hit for only .279, and for the first and only time playing a full campaign out there, I failed to knock in at least 100 runs.

It was that season that Johnny Bassler, old Detroit catcher who was our regular receiver then, told me something several veteran players have told me since.

Vet's Advice

"You have the power to bat close to .500 every year, if you could meet the ball half the times you swing at it," he said. "I can't understand what's wrong with you. You're rarely fooled by a pitch.

"You seem to swing right where the ball is, but it gets by you as though there were a hole in your bat."

He suggested that I choke up on my bat now and then.

I've followed that advice since, and I think it's helped me considerably.

When I'm in a hitting streak or I'm after a home run, I swing from the end of the bat, but when I'm trying to snap out of one of those slumps when I'm fanning frequently or when it's important that I get a piece of the ball, I can usually do it by shortening up on my bat.

But no matter how I've swung I've always done my share of striking out. I guess I always will.

Bassler said he couldn't understand it. Neither can I.

I can recall any number of instances when I've looked terrible missing a curve or fast one and then hit exactly the same kind of ball out of the lot on the next pitch.

I can't explain it, but I don't let it worry me.

I had [illegible] about my failures of [illegible] when I started to Hollywood in 1934 and got off to a great start.

Early in June I was hitting at a 350 clip and had my bags all packed to go to Pittsburgh.

A Pirate scout had put his O. K. on me and the deal was expected to be closed at any minute.

Then, all of a sudden, it got so I couldn't buy, beg or borrow a base hit.

Good "Break"

I was hitting the ball as often and as hard as I had been during the first half of the season but four out of every five drives I made went right at somebody.

And the Pirates changed their mind about me.

When the curtain fell on that campaign, I had an average of only .289, but I had hit 25 home runs and had driven in 112 runs.

That slugging record led me to hope that some big league club might decide to give me a trial, but I hoped in vain.

The Hollywood franchise was shifted to San Diego that winter. And I shifted with it, still a Coast Leaguer.

I was bitterly disappointed at the time that the Pirates hadn't bought me, but now that I'm in the majors I feel it was a "break" for me that the Pittsburgh deal fell through.

At least, I'm certain I'm getting more consideration and have a better chance of winning a regular berth here than I would have received had I gone to Pittsburgh.

He's an Actor

With a 10-run lead, he'd every now and then complain about the umpiring.

He had a perfect day at bat, collecting a double and a single and laying down two sacrifice bunts. He was trapped between third and home after his double and caught off first after his single. He doffed his cap to the "umps" after each decision and guffawed loudly.

He had a great day. So did his partners in the massacre. Don Gutterbridge was put back on third base. He rapped out four hits, including a home run in the second, which ended Turner. He stole two bases and almost stole home.

The final score was 13 to 1, as you are no doubt well aware of by this time.

It was the first game the Bees lost by a margin of greater than three runs; the first game in which they weren't in the running right to the finish.

Every club is bound to have so many of those days. The Cards had one the day before.

They couldn't possibly have [illegible] the way Dean was [illegible] would have been [illegible] effort had they been able to make it close.

HEELFLY New Derby THREAT

SPINS SECOND FAST TRIAL

By WARREN BROWN

Louisville Ky., May 6 (US) — Kentucky Derby week has now reached that stage wherein the inevitable sensational work of a "dark horse" challenges conversational leadership with such topics as the weather, the dancing in the street and other carnival features.

This time it was Heelfly, the Texas-owned candidate, which is hitched to the Waggoner brothers' Derby hopes, that cracked down in the early morn with the sprightliest mile and a quarter of practice running yet turned in by any of the possible starters in Saturday's classic.

Heelfly, running over a slow track, went the distance in 2:06 2-5 and by the time that news had passed from observers to middle men and so on down to the lobbies of the Brown and Kentucky hotels Heelfly's time had been cut down to such a point that it was challenging Twenty Grand's track record.

However, the work was exciting enough, coming as it did a bit ahead of a drenching rain, which threatened to make the dancing in the street something that would appeal more to Eleanor Holm Jarrett than to Yolanda.

In fractional time, the work went like this: [illegible] 36 2-5, 49, 1:14 [illegible] 1:53, 2:06 2-5.

This is the second time within a week that Heelfly has created a commotion at the Downs.

A few days ago the Texas hope ful worked out on the track at the same time that the favorite, Sam Riddle's War Admiral, was on duty.

That time Heelfly caught up and passed War Admiral, and some of the experts were prone to make something of that.

[illegible] own, with Louisville's week of carnival about to get going in real style, and with all the flags and bunting on display, it was rather discouraging to have another day of rain added to a record that this territory can [illegible] as having been entirely too damp already.

Brooklyn Fans Riding Dodgers

CLAIM MUNGO ONLY PLAYER

The home of the Brooklyn Dodgers, one-time idols of baseball's most faithful fans, is seething with dissatisfaction and strong language, all aimed at the various over-and un-seasoned hirelings who make up the best team Manager Burleigh Grimes has to offer.

But the boys who put their cash on the line aren't sore at Burleigh, also a one-time Flatbush hero. Their ire is directed at the directors, officers and other higher-ups.

"It ain't Burleigh's fault," said one of the few thousands who grumbled their way out of Ebbets field late yesterday afternoon after seeing Pittsburgh's Cy Blanton set the Dodgers down with five hits and one run, Brooklyn hitters six times leaving men stranded.

"Naw, he ain't to blame. Who-inell could make a team outa them bums? He's only got one ball player, an' that's Mungo," was the response. "Why don't they loosen up and buy some ball players?"

Critical

When Long Tom fanned for the first time the cry was "Get the tramp outta there. He can't field and he can't hit." When he struck out a second time his return to his left field post was greeted with jeers, sarcasm and a shower of shredded paper and peanut shells.

When Paul Waner hoisted a fly his way in the ninth, the fans rose as one, shouting, "Lemme look, lemme look, I wanna see if the bum can catch it." When he singled in the last of the ninth, only to go out as Randy Moore hit into a double play, they acted as if they didn't believe it.

War Admiral Inherits Bad Trait of Father

Louisville, Ky., May 6 (AP)—Two horses having little in common held the spotlight today as the rapidly increasing Kentucky Derby crowd battled long and vociferously over the probable outcome of the $50,000 turf classic at Churchill Downs Saturday.

Fast trials and previous victories of other eligibles notwithstanding, they stack up as the horses to beat when Starter Bill Hamilton sends the score or so of three-year-old aces away from the barrier about 4:45 p. m. (Central Standard Time).

War Admiral is so small that he looks almost like a pony alongside Mrs. Mars' ace. But he has four [illegible] daddy, Man o' War, the Riddle colt prefers nothing better than to get out in front and run his rivals into the ground.

Admiral Mean

The Man o' War offspring has another one of his sire's traits in that he has a mean disposition [illegible] the race is underway. However he is all business. Reaping Reward, a pet around the stable, is as gentle as a lamb.

Even their style of living is different. War Admiral has quarters in a new barn of the regular track [illegible]. There [illegible] to his stable [illegible] boy at [illegible].

They are alike in that both are rated as brown colts, although Reaping Reward appears to be more black. Both also prefer to race over fast tracks. Reaping Reward has advantage in that respect if the going is heavy, however, for in Military, he has a capable mud running stablemate.

Fair Weather

For the first time this week the weather man promised [illegible] for today and [illegible] few days left [illegible] was taxed to the utmost, as the [illegible] moved in via every mode of transportation. Today's arrivals were only a drop in the bucket, however, as compared to the mob that will descend on the city tomorrow and early Saturday morning.

What the Stars Did

By The Associated Press

ATTENED ON DEPRESSION

"Not so many years ago, the Communist Party in the United States was a weakly knitted band of disgruntled crackpots. We can all recall that the mention of Reds in the United States was brushed aside as so much nonsense.

"The depression gave the Communists the opportunity they had long sought in this country. They used that opportunity to the fullest extent, with the result that today the party and its spirited organizers constitute a real and not an imaginary menace to our national security.

Communism is an insidious germ bred in the fields of social unrest created through unemployment, low wages, sweat shops and management's mistreatment of the workers. Remove the cause of this unrest and you remove one of the most powerful props supporting the Communist theory of social betterment.

"The Communist is primarily a rabble rouser with little regard for the truth. Like a drowning man, he snatches for the smallest straw of discontent in an effort to buoy up a dying cause.

"The Communist is overjoyed [illegible] wages and unemployment [illegible] his springboard to [illegible] and better trades against [illegible] in general and the United States in particular."

CITES POPE'S REMEDY

"By so doing they will contribute in a large measure to the nation-wide drive against Communism. It is an incontrovertible fact that a general hiking of wages and better working conditions would be a smashing blow to the nefarious activities of Communists who live off unrest and trumped-up charges of mistreatment.

I believe the public generally is not aware of the seriousness of the situation. Otherwise, I believe we would have seen more concrete action taken against these professional uplifters who would supplant democracy with Russian Bolshevism.

"I believe if employers throughout the country would make a concerted effort to raise the standard of working conditions, one of the main arguments against capitalism, as advanced by the Communists, would be shot from under them.

"Better social conditions, of course, is not the whole answer to the Communist's challenge. We shall always have malcontents with us, even if we were to pay every working man in the country much larger wages.

[illegible]

"Communist leaders and their organizers delight in stirring up the masses, creating false hopes, heaping their venom on employers and those in high public office and sinking their poisonous fangs into our national bloodstream.

"Are they sincere? Are they mentally unbalanced men suffering from an overdose of fantastic day dreams?

"They are neither. Communist leaders are cunning, despicable and practical men bent on the destruction of the nation for their own profit. They are paid to foment distrust in our Government and rebellion against its laws. They make their living beating the masses into a fury over imaginary ills."

Declaring that Congress must act to rid America of these alien agitators, Plant said:

"Our deportation laws are too lax. They are so drawn that their operation is crippled almost to the point of nullification. Congress should re-write these laws in such a way that the secretary of labor would be empowered to deport Communists, especially alien Communists, simply and expeditiously.

"Above all else, Congress should take immediate steps toward the enactment of the pending bill of Representative McCormack of Massachusetts. That bill is now smothered in committee with Congressional leaders making no explanation to the American people why it has been shelved.

"The McCormack bill is not sweeping in character, it is not harsh, it is not illogical. It simply states that anyone seeking the overthrow of this Government through force or violence is guilty of a Federal offense.

"Under our present weak laws covering Communism, the Russian paid organizers are boarding our American vessels, seeking to foment trouble among the men who constitute the country's first line of defense.

"Through pamphlets and other media of propaganda, paid Communist organizers are telling our soldiers and sailors to desert their allegiance to a country they have sworn to uphold.

HITS RELIEF POLICY

"There is no law to stop these Communistic inroads on our security and one solution is the passage of the McCormack bill."

Plant attacked the government's relief policy as playing into the hands of the Communists. He said:

"The federal government is spending millions of dollars annually in feeding, clothing and housing the very people who are seeking our destruction. We, the taxpayers, are paying for our own ruination.

"A concrete example of this situation is the Workers Alliance of America, a Communist-controlled organization which, with amazing regularity, marches on Washington to demand greater relief allotments. If we Americans were zealous in cutting these Communists off relief rolls as they are in overthrowing the government, I feel sure our democracy would be removed from danger at least along one front.

"Again, this is a matter for Congress to decide. We trust that when the House and Senate act on the relief measure that they will insert an amendment denying federal funds to aliens who seek our destruction. That would be one sure method of suppressing a large segment of Communist activities in this country."

Declaring that one of the most effective methods for combatting Communism in American is truth, Plant said:

"Let us study Communism, its causes and effects, and above all its deplorable and tragic operation in Russia. The rays of truth are sufficiently powerful to kill this social germ.

"Communists profess a burning love for democratic ideals. In reality, however, all their social and economic thoughts run contrary to concepts of democracy. Communism is the forerunner of Fascism which they say threatens the country. Let them abandon Communism and the specter of Fascism will soon disappear."

Last spring the Quadrennial Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church repudiated the Social Service group after the Methodist Laymen's League charged that five of its leaders were members of Moscow-directed organizations.

A year ago the federation also voted 73 to 10 to affiliate with the American League against War and Fascism, known as the red front.

The latest action included a protest to the Board of Bishops of the church against penalizing ministers who express liberal social and economic views.

Other resolutions included one expressing opposition to proposals for compulsory arbitration of labor disputes. It was reported out by a committee headed by the Rev. A. A. Heist of the Lawrence Methodist Church, Los Angeles.

Tufts Opens Probe

Expulsion Facing Student Rioters

With official investigations of student riots at Harvard and M. I. T. already in progress, and at least six Harvard students facing possible expulsion, Tufts College officials today started a probe of the latest of the "spring riots."

Boston police and authorities at Boston University were also taking precautions to circumvent possible rioting by B. U. students in the Back Bay, where it is thought the mania will strike next.

Two Tufts students may be suspended for looting Somerville fire engines called last night to extinguish fires set on Reservoir Hill where 600 Tufts and Jackson College students turned the college campus into a bedlam.

SEEKS RINGLEADERS

Professor George F. Miller, assistant to President John A. Cousens of Tufts, announced today that he is making an investigation as to who were ringleaders in the student riot and the extent of the damage caused.

Further action by college authorities will depend on the outcome of this investigation, he said.

Meanwhile Mayor John D. Lynch of Cambridge and Chief Timothy F. Leahy were at swordspoints today as to the proper method of handling a spring riot after M. I. T. and Harvard student papers protested police brutality and strong arm tactics in the two Cambridge riots.

Said Mayor Lynch:

"The students are like spring flowers. They're not seen all winter, then the warm weather brings them out. It is the highlight of their college careers, something never to be forgotten.

"All that is necessary is a proper attitude on the part of the police to control students and prevent serious consequences. The students soon tire themselves with shouting and running about, and go back to their rooms."

"As a 100 per cent police officer, I believe in treating them as such. The college authorities should impose stern penalties to prevent recurrences."

The first step in making a diorama, after the subject matter has been decided upon is to take shears and paper and, by folding and cutting, assemble the details which have been mechanically provided by Mr. and Mrs. Holling.

Every week there may be a different story evolving about the cutout diorama. There may be divers searching for treasures under the sea one week. The next Sunday there may be elephants in jungles or ships sailing the seven seas or planes blazing new air trails.

Each diorama will tell the story that a real museum tells. Every boy and girl is his or her own museum curator.

ALL TELL STORIES

Most large museums of natural history are divided into four or five departments. One is geology and its specimens and cases tell the story of rocks and minerals and how the earth was made.

Another department is botany and tells the story of plants. The third is zoology and contains the story of animals. The fourth is called anthropology and is the story of man.

The fifth department is one of exploration and it is this department which sends scientist explorers into remote places to gather material for the entire museum. The Boston Sunday Advertiser "World Museum" will bring its young contestants these same departments and another one [illegible]

If you know a leader when you meet one, you'll see the moment you try this sparkling Buick why it's called the out-in-front car of the year.

You'll go for the way it goes for you—serene, steady, gallant as the figurehead on a buoyant ship—you're in for a thrill every time you put it into action.

You handle a wheel that turns as easy as the pages of a book. You press the treadle—and sink inches deep back in the soft cushions with the swoop of its take-off.

You click off miles by the score, the hundred—and no matter how far you range or what gait you travel, you can't get a whine out of that softly whispering engine!

The answer is you've got a car that was born to go places the way you want to go—smoother, safer, steadier than any car you've known.

Power in this flashing Buick is the power of eight straight valve-in-head cylinders. Its gait is the level gait of a car built close to earth with enough bulk to hold it there.

Yet the crowning touch of its creators was none of these but the figures they succeeded in writing on its price tag. The hard-to-realize fact is that this great straight eight can be bought for less than some of today's sixes!

There's just one way to get the true picture of Buick's standout value, and that's to drive it yourself. See your authorized Buick dealer soon and get your order in, and you'll enjoy a summer like you've dreamed of!

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

HANEY ON TAXES

N. Y. Gasoline Tax
OF CENT A GALLON
Puts Load on Poor

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics of New York University

New York, May 6—The State of New York has just "solved" its fiscal problem of the moment. The solution has been found in an increased tax.

The state's budget had become so unbalanced, as the result of heavy spending, that it seemed to the Governor imperative to take drastic steps to raise some additional revenue. Evidently the political situation is still such that few stand up for cutting the spending. So the politicians look around for a "painless" tax.

* * *

In this case they bit upon an increase in the tax on gasoline. Already those who buy that motor fuel pay four cents a gallon in taxes. Now they are to pay an additional cent. To the existing three-cent state tax plus one cent federal tax, there is to be added another one cent for the state. That makes five cents per gallon, which is a nice round sum.

Say a man makes 6000 miles a year in driving his car. At an average of 15 miles to the gallon that makes his gasoline consumption equal to 400 gallons.

Or say a man goes out for a drive on Sundays and holidays, using five gallons each time. That is 25 cents. In the course of the year it will run to over $10.

Will Rogers used to say: Give an American five gallons of gas and a hamburger and the world is his. Now you can say this formula gives the world to the government.

* * *

This New York gas tax is designed to raise $20,000,000. The [illegible] of the debt has doubtless been increased for unnecessary [illegible] expenditures.

Who pays?

The common garden variety of clerk and laborer pays the bulk of this tax.

It is distinctly a tax on the poor man. It is distinctly a 'regressive' tax, the burden of which increases as the income decreases.

I conclude either that the politicians figure that the car owner will not see this tax, or that they have run the income tax up so high that they don't dare to soak the well-to-do any harder.

* * *

One thing I would like to know is this: What is the use of pouring out our money on building roads all over the country, and then turning around and soaking us 5 cents for every 15 miles we travel on those roads?

* * *

The Federal Trade Commission has given the answer. It says in a recent report: "To tax out of existence the advantages [illegible] is to tax out of existence the advantages which the consuming public have found in patronizing [illegible] subsequent addition to the cost of living, for that [illegible]."

It is not surprising therefore to find that the unbiased Twentieth Century Fund in its new book entitled "Facing the Tax Problem" says: 'The committee recommends that all special taxes on chain stores be immediately repealed."

* *

They have been used to maintain those who would be injured [illegible] competition although these methods benefit [illegible]."

They "tend to raise the cost of living for the large number of people with small incomes who depend on efficient merchandising to get the most for their money."

* * *

The government just now professes to be much concerned over our rising cost of living. (And they well may be, for there comes a time when even the worm turns.) But no small part of our living cost is the result of taxes such as these laid on gasoline and chain stores.

The only remedy that I know is to cut the government spending, and cut it enough to stop the resort to taxes which fall on the consumer of the necessaries and ordinary comforts of life.

BABSON
Sees Better BUSINESS

PREDICTS 7 P. C. GAIN IN 1937

Indianapolis, May 6 (AP)—Arthur C. Babson, member of the Babson Statistical Organization of Babson Park, Mass., predicted here today the nation's 1937 business would be at least seven per cent better than that of 1936, "the best year in point of business volume since 1929."

He told approximately 800 Indiana bankers that business activity was back at 1923-27 levels, but had not reached the 1929 levels.

He said higher profits, more orders and greater employment had caused the evaporation of depression. He estimated the 1936 national income was approximately $60,000,000,000, an increase of more than 50 per cent over the low of $[illegible] in 1932 and within [illegible] per cent of the 1929 high of $83,000,000,000.

"In 1930 the trend of business was definitely downgrade," Babson pointed out. "In 1936 the trend of business was just as definitely upgrade. The physical volume of business last year was 4 per cent above 1930."

He asserted the balance in the business world "is better than it has been for a long time."

In support of this statement he pointed out: (1) Industry's debt to creditors is the lowest in many years; (2) fixed charges have been reduced greatly through a scaling down of debt; (3) large amounts of refinancing have been consummated at low rates of interest; (4) corporation earnings have been increasing rapidly; (5) bank clearings have continued to make gains, and (6) business failures have continued abnormally low.

Babson predicted an increase of at least 30 per cent in all building during 1937.

'Change Handled by Boy Workers

New York, May 6 (AP)—Officials of the New York Stock Exchange theoretically had a day off today when young employes of the organization took over their duties on the occasion of the annual Youths' Day.

The important matter for the day was to be the meeting of the "governing committee" of boys, who were to discuss a proposal, submitted last Youths' Day, for a five-day trading week during the summer months.

Observers predicted it would be carried enthusiastically by the lads, but also believed their elders would go right along trading on Saturday.

MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Employers Adding JOBS WITH
Sense of Restraint

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
(Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service)

New York, May 6—Thoughtful employers are adding names to payrolls in this period of expansion with a sense of restraint.

There is a disinclination to take on additional personnel burdens without making reasonably sure that they can be retained.

If in time of depression, firms ran with a hundred employes, they are inclined to add 50 more rather than a hundred, for example. They are seeking to estimate their average needs through the years.

MERIT RATINGS

Although not all States give a merit rating and tax preferential to employers with a stable record employers hope that the merit principle will become widely adopted.

Perhaps it is an improvement to estimate personnel needs calmly and analytically rather than to hire in haste and fire men wholesale at the first recession.

On the other hand, the immediate short term effect of such a cautious attitude is to slow up the process of re-employment.

My own view is that real economic security inheres in maintaining a balanced national economy.

Unemployment compensation is nothing more than a palliative which gives limited benefits for a limited number of weeks.

HOLLIS CITES VIEWS

In connection with the growing demand in this country for more definitive legal responsibility on the part of labor unions, Christopher Hollis, British economist, now on the staff of Notre Dame University, has summed up the essence of British experience in this field.

"In Great Britain the trades union was first recognized as a corporation by an act passed by the government of Mr. Gladstone in 1871. It was primarily in the interests of the trades unions themselves that this act was passed, as previously they had had to bank their funds in the name of one of their officers, and they had no legal remedy if that officer should use those funds for his private purposes. However, in 1900 there was a strike on the Taff Vale Railway in South Wales. In the course of the dispute riots took place, and there was some damage. Under the act of 1871 the Taff Vale Railway Company sued the union concerned, the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, and obtained a judgement holding them liable for the extent of the damages, which were calculated at 23,000 pounds.

DECISION AROUSED DISMAY

"This decision aroused dismay in the trades union circles and they pressed for an amendment of the law. As a consequence, in 1906, the trades dispute act was passed by the liberal government of Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, in accordance with which it became impossible to sue either an employer's or a workman's union. It was widely thought in labor circles that as a result of this act no one could be held liable for any damage suffered in a labor dispute except the individual, who could be proved physically to have committed that damage.

"However, in the general strike of 1926 the other unions who supported the miners in their lockout struck work without giving their employers the due notice to which they were legally entitled. It was also argued by lawyers that the general strike was in its nature illegal, because the unionists, other than the miners, were not striking on account of any grievance of hours or wages of their own, which it lay within the power of their employers to remedy. They were merely striking in sympathy with the miners. Sir John Simon, the present home secretary, who at that time occupied no official position, but who was, however, the most prominent barrister in the country, gave it in Parliament as his personal interpretation of the law that the general strike was illegal and that the impossibility of suing the unions concerned, far from meaning that nobody could be sued, meant that the union leaders were liable in their own pockets for all damage which resulted from the stoppage of work."

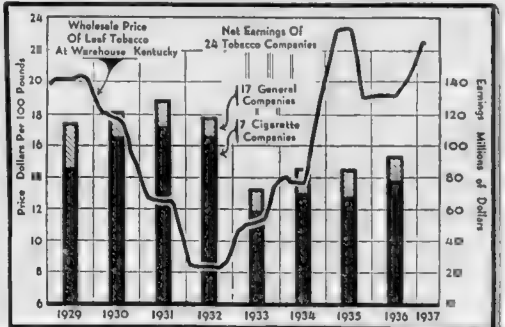
Tobacco Costs Limit Earnings Rise



Twenty-four tobacco companies had total net earnings in 1936 of $84,965,000, according to a compilation by Moody's. While this total was the highest since 1932, the recovery in profits in the past four years in this industry has been at a much slower pace than the profit recovery in general industry.

Of these 24 companies, seven are principally engaged in cigarette manufacture. Ten others are cigar companies, three make snuff, and four are classified as "miscellaneous." The black section of the bars on this chart represents the earnings of the seven cigarette companies. Last year their combined earnings amounted at $77,800,000, compared with the peak of $111,162,000 earned in 1931, a the recent low of $59,556,000, recorded in 1933.

One reason for the failure of tobacco compan to recover more substantially is the cost of ra material—in this case, tobacco. The line show here depicts the trend of leaf tobacco prices a Kentucky warehouses, used primarily for cigarett At the February level of about $22.50 per 100 pound the tobacco price was not much below the pea reached in 1935, and sharply above depression an pre-depression levels. In 1932, the raw tobacco le sold for less than $8.50 per 100 pounds.

FORBES TELLS:

Heavy JOB OF BEING President

By B. C. FORBES

A veteran business man, who spent many years in public service, including membership in President Theodore Roosevelt's cabinet, chided me the other evening:

"You and other newspaper men have written much about the present administration's policies, including its attitude towards the utility industry. But you have missed the main point completely.

[illegible]

"What you and other commentators should emphasize—and this is the only thing necessary to emphasize—is that it isn't a function of government.

"Government was organized to govern. Government was not organized to compete with industry, to own and run businesses.

The administration of the national affairs, the public affairs, the federal affairs of this vast country has already become so many-sided, so difficult, so complicated that the tasks devolving upon the chief executive are back breaking, health breaking. To pile more and more responsibilities on the occupant of the White House would be a tragic mistake, cruel, inhuman. No mortal could successfully withstand the strain.

"Our government has already shouldered more than enough duties, more than it is likely to be able to discharge efficiently. Most assuredly it should not seek to invade additional fields of private enterprise. It should continue itself to administrating the [illegible] of [illegible] properly belonging to government."

It Seems Cocktails Now Rule the Waves

It was a common wail during that ugly era—prohibition—that the quality of some of the bottled goods was sufficient to remove your hair.

But fancy a cocktail or two removing the permanent wave from the hair of mesdames and miladys. You don't believe it? Well here's what P. Richard, famous New York hairdresser, told listeners at a presentation of summer coiffures at the Copley-Plaza.

"Too many cocktails affect the quality of the permanent wave. If you want a good permanent, drink only one and go to bed early the night before."

That seems to be a lot of training for one cocktail, but follow along with Mr. Richard. He should know about cocktails vs. coiffures. He said:

"If you are sick, nervous or run down, get your permanent early in the morning. Before 1 o'clock anyway, and wear a hat this summer to protect your hair. Too much sun is every bit as ruinous to the hair as to your skin.

"Sixty per cent of the women in the United States can wear their hair the Wallis Simpson way with a part in the middle. American women have the faces for it."

The famous beauty expert said red nails were doomed because men hated them; that foreheads are coming to the front in headdress now; and warned that Coronation coiffures were only passing fancies

X-RAY

Examination and consultation absolutely FREE to all who call before May 9th. The X-ray and mercury quartz light treatment is accomplishing wonders in disease of every description. No matter what your disease, Daniel J. Walsh, M. D., fulfills the above offer.

PLEURISY

Mr. W. F. Penney, 1158 Pleasant St., East Weymouth, Mass., says: "I had pleurisy in my right side of my chest. I could hardly walk or breathe it was so painful. I had Dr. Walsh treat me and he cured me. That was 17 years ago and I have had no trouble with pleurisy since. I make this statement that others may know that they can safely trust Dr. Walsh with their ailments." Signed W. F. Penney.

MONEY TO LOAN

Home Furnishings . . .

Substantial savings are sometimes possible by cash purchase of furniture, rugs, and other household effects. In Boston and nearby communities, the Shawmut Monthly Payment Plan helps responsible persons with regular income to obtain funds to take advantage of such possibilities at a new low charge, enabling you to borrow on this type of loan at a lower cost than ever before, with systematic repayment over an extended period. You need not be a depositor to take advantage of this service, available at the main office and at all branches.

And We Still Have Too Many Used Cars

I HAVE GOT TO SELL 75 CARS THIS WEEK
To do it I must certainly give better cars at lower prices than the other fellow.
Come in and see the cars I have PERSONALLY INDORSED for this week. Look at the good tires—the spotless upholstery—the bright finish. Ride in them. See how nicely they perform.
And, remember, they all carry our MONEY BACK GUARANTEE.

A Matter Only People Should Decide

THE Massachusetts House of Representatives and Senate, in joint convention May 12, will once more consider the initiative petition for biennial sessions of the Legislature.

The vote should be an emphatic "YES." Last year's favorable decision should be repeated with added support. And the question should go on the ballot for the people themselves to decide.

No Senator or Representative should presume to settle this matter for the people. To do so would be to cast upon himself suspicions of being motivated by greed or of entertaining delusions of autocratic power.

For it is a fact that annual sessions benefit principally the Senators and Representatives. They are the ones who collect a total of approximately $800,000 a year in salaries and expenses.

Certainly annual sessions could not be said to benefit the people who pay the $800,000 when the State's business can be handled just as effectively by law-makers meeting every other year.

Proof that this is possible is seen in forty-two of the forty-eight States that have found biennial sessions the way to intelligent economy and better laws.

THE May 12th joint legislative convention will be an important event in Massachusetts history.

On that date vital and fundamental issues will be determined. They could be thus expressed:

Will the members of the House and Senate, who receive nearly $800,000 a year, give the people who pay that $800,000 the opportunity to record their wishes in a democratic manner?

Or will legislators, acting with greed and selfishness, say in effect to the voters: YOU CANNOT VOTE ON THIS MATTER. WE WON'T LET YOU.?

There is only ONE choice for Senators and Representatives truly representative. That choice is LET THE PEOPLE VOTE.

A True Picture

GOVERNOR FRANCIS P. MURPHY of New Hampshire made an important contribution to the current constitutional debate before the Convention of the Catholic Daughters of America in his State.

Discussing "The Influence of the Constitution on America's History," he dwelt upon the fact that sole authority for change in the Constitution must REMAIN IN THE PEOPLE.

Surrender of this authority would be SURRENDER OF LIBERTY.

Governor Murphy refuted the belief that the Constitution is an outworn instrument of law and principle.

He paid tribute to it as "a responsive, living instrument of government instead of a rigid legal document of dead letters."

There should be wider understanding of this true picture of the Constitution. It is not a century and a half behind our times. It has marched with America, kept pace with progress, adjusted itself to changing times and conditions.

It has done this, according to Governor Murphy, because "the element of flexibility has permitted THE PEOPLE to keep the Constitution constantly adjusted to prevailing needs."

The strength of the Constitution as a continuing instrument of government rests upon the right of change as a RIGHT OF THE PEOPLE.

"This sovereign privilege," the Governor said, "of amending in an orderly manner their great code of national policies as a bulwark against the selfish, the demagogue and the would-be dictator."

That is an accurate summation of the present challenge to constitutional government.

Protect the Forests

ONE man dead, others injured, homes destroyed and more than two thousand acres burned, the Plymouth and Hyannis forest fires direct attention to the serious hazard that exists throughout New England.

Because of the abnormally light snowfall of the past winter and the recent dry winds, wooded areas in this section are like tinder.

Consequently, we must fight the fire BEFORE rather than after large areas have been ruined.

Until heavy rains come, all New England woods should be patroled day and night, and in this work the various C. C. C. troops might be enlisted.

When necessary, forests where the danger is particularly great should be closed to motorists, hikers and fishermen. We must protect our woodlands. They are among our most valuable assets.

Our Duty

SANFORD BATES, prominent Bostonian, former Federal Prisons Bureau director, does not have too much faith in the ability of reformatories to reform criminals.

"Prisons, reformatories and training schools have not proved successful in ending crime," he says.

Mr. Bates is right; the career of crime that ends in the electric chair too often began in the cradle.

Though we must keep our prisons and reformatories, we can and should FIGHT CRIME AT THE SOURCE by proper home, educational and recreational advantages for all children

Not Popular

Boston's no-fix traffic laws, written and approved by Senators and Representatives, should apply to them as much as to the private citizen.

There should be no immunity for the man who has the good fortune to hold public office.

Justice and fairness demand that if $180,000 of the people's money is to be spent for a parking space, every motorist should have the right to use it.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, May 6—The plight of many theatrical stars was stressed this mid-winter when William Faversham, for years an idol of the stage, gave up the long fight for a living and entered an actors' home with the listing "completely destitute." He had fought valiantly for a niche here and in Hollywood.

O. O. McIntyre

The Faversham-Julie Opp openings were the Lunt and Fontanne premieres of that day. They received the highest salaries ever paid up to that time and on their tours were as popular in the outland as in New York. No star got more mash notes than "Favvy."

Faversham went to his charity cloister with his chin up. He refused to see reporters. "I am of a forgotten past," he said, "and of no interest to the public." There are a half hundred Favershams in Broadway, going down hill, with shoulders back, head high.

They live in shabby rooming houses and try with all their might to look prosperous, hoping against hope for the inevitable break. Almost every day they drop into the Lambs or Players as though life were not the heart-breaking existence it has turned out to be.

The current ringadoo in cigarette cases is large sized in plain gold or silver upon which the owners has the autographs of his intimate friends engraved. Clay Morgan, the N. B. C. ballyhooer, has one of the most elaborate—inscribed with more than 100 famous names. Incidentally, I hear the most expensive cigarette case known is owned by the Duke of Windsor and cost $14,000.

As the result of a suit of her last husband, Chet O'Brien, a member of her company, to share in her estate, it was revealed that Marilyn Miller left but $64,000. During her most productive dozen years she was the stage's highest-salaried star, receiving during some months of "Sally" $7500 a week; a record up to that time. She lived modestly but was generous with friends and relatives.

For her talents she rose higher than most any actress of her time. A hundred girls in the chorus could dance as well and her voice was not unusual. Also her smile was one of those woodenly prop grimaces, yet she had a quality, not sex, but a "little girl" appeal, that brought customers to the box office.

She made more money for Ziegfeld than any other single star.

Editor Squire Mauck, of my home town paper writes: "This is the first letter I have written since the flood and I don't remember writing one before."

And from a San Francisco word beagler: "Oftenest misspelled word in the papers GAUGE. Oftenest misplaced ONLY. Most wretched affectation in these degenerate times is the use of the word DRUNK and the term LOUSY." And can't something be done about "definitely?"

Also there comes a boot on Biltmore hotel stationery for the favorite actress of many in a twist of the old Dr. Fell theme in:

I do not like you, Kate Cornell,
But why it is I cannot tell.
But this I know and know full well
I do not like you, Kate Cornell.

Everybody knows the nature of the radio announcer's job is to be parroty. And quite a number make an art of sorts of a difficult task. They know that in most instances they are, like income taxes, endured. Still, I wish that one some day would refuse to spout that most meaningless and inconsequential line: "For further information see your daily paper." Too, I hear Cheerio is one of the few artists with enormous following who refuses to have a sponsor.

Thingumbobs: George S. Kaufman thinks up his plays pacing up and down . . . Somerset Maugham outlines his plays sitting quiet in a straight-backed chair . . . Raymond G. Carroll, Washington correspondent, is reputed to know Paris better than any American.

I prefer listening to Gabriel Heatter to almost all news commentators on the radio. Aside from always having something worth while to say, he has an interesting complex. He is forever saying "A man named——" Recently I heard him say "A man named Lincoln" three times. And always it's "A man named Roosevelt." He even swerves now and then into "the road called life."

Has he a wife? If so where is she when he broadcasts? Wives handle such things. How well I know.

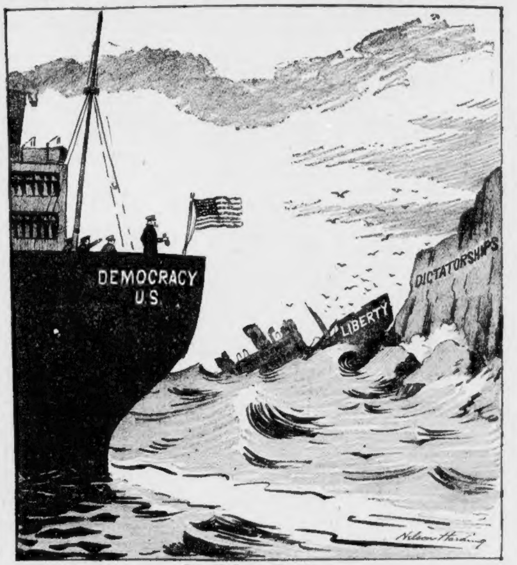
Isn't It So?

At this time of year, some women have such a housekeeping complex that they would not build a castle-in-Spain without filling it with kitchen shelves, vacuum cleaners and plenty of linen closets.

"A Wreck on Shore Is a Beacon at Sea"



By Nelson Harding

Like a beacon light of warning
To the ocean's navigators
Wrecked upon that rocky coastline
Is the sunk and shattered vessel

From those cruel cliffs the victims
Rusting hulk warns passing sailors
With its grim and tragic story

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

You're hurt, you cry. You can't go on with life. Your heart is broken—your faith shattered. You cannot mix with happier, more fortunate folk.

Elsie Robinson

Yes, I felt that way, too. Once I, too, let my hurt wall me away from others . . . became, unconsciously, a miser and an egotist in my misery. Then slowly I learned better . . . learned how pain may bless as well as blight. Pain will always blight you if you hoard it . . . always bless you if you share it.

Do not hoard your hurt. Do not clutch your grief, your fear and humiliation, as though they were unique and private experiences which shut you out from the common lot. They're not. Pain is universal. It is part of everyone's destiny. It is Life. Take it that way. Do not let it separate you from other lives. Let it bring your nearer to other lives . . . help you to understand and enter into other lives.

Do not hoard your hurt—share it. Share it as you share the communion bread and wine.

Do you remember that beautiful story of the "Last Supper" from which the ritual of Communion came? There is a mystery and beauty in that story beyond my stupid interpretation. But there is also a simple and heartening truth which we all may grasp—a truth which comes as close to you and to me in our trouble today as it did to the afflicted two thousand years ago.

SHARED MISERY

There they were—the young Christ and the twelve who had followed Him for those three brief and glorious years. There they were, gathered together in an upper room to observe the Passover, as was the Jewish custom.

"And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body.

"And He took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it;

Poverty and persecution. A shabby upper room . . . twelve frightened men, most of them common working men, bewildered by a dread which lay beyond the comprehension of their simple minds . . . some bread and wine . . . and one young man who shortly was to die an awful death.

Yet out of that shared misery there came a power which was to change the whole, sad human world . . . lift man forever to a nobler, prouder plane.

But how?

WIDEN YOUR VISION

That "broken bread and wine"—they were the symbols of a mingled life and love. And each man, drinking, was the greater for the thing he drank . . . and each man, eating, was the wiser for the thing he ate. For with that wine and bread they mixed their lives with—God!

There had been gods before upon this earth. Far gods who dwelt on Mount Olympus, and left little men to struggle on their lonely way below. But Christ was not a God who dwelt apart. He lived and shared Himself with men, in life or death. And taught men how to share—by sharing his own life! And so built brotherhood—that deeper, wider plan of living which binds man to man, and man to God.

Don't hoard your hurt—share it. Share it as they shared bread and wine . . . and hope and fear and grief and rapture and the God they loved—in that small upper room.

So take your tears . . . your broken dreams, and shattered pride . . . and of them make A COVENANT. A covenant with every other suffering, frightened soul . . .

A covenant that will not shut you out from life, but will, instead, make life so wide, so deep, that you'll forget your own cruel, private loss! And stretch your vision 'till it's wide as life itself.

'Yures Truly'

Mr. Morganthau
SECT OF DEBTS
U. S. GOVT

Dear Mr. Morganthau:

I have took pensil in hand to whisper some advice in your ear, but pleaze dont get mad. I don't know nothing about running a Treazury, my wife Mabel does that, but I know plenty about Poker.

Well, the other day you told the newspapers that you could keep the Bond market from falling fast, becauze you had plenty of Chips.

For the love of Mike, Mr. Morganthau, don't count your chips. If you ever played Poker, you will of found out that in any Gambling Game, such as U. S. Bonds, the unluckyest thing you can do is count your chips.

The last time I was winning from the boys down at Charlie's Bar, I figgered I had the game on ice, just like you think you got the Bond market, so I counted up my winnings, and a couple of minutes later a guy with a Full House took me and my Flush to the cleaners & busted me flat.

Another reason you better not count your chips, Mr. Secatary, its becauze most of them is what you Dragged Light. If you ever played Poker, you will know that Dragging Light is where you take chips out of the pot and stack them up in front of you, to show how much money you will owe if you dont win.

Well, your chips is mostly made up of a few Billions which belongs to the tax payers, so that means your dragging light.

WINSTON NORMAN.

Wise Words

Boston at first thought Lincoln was merely a rail-splitter. He was not only this; he was the greatest statesman of his century.—Charles Sumner.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Three days before the municipal election in a North Carolina town, only six of the 600 residents were registered and eligible to vote. Public apathy toward public business makes for bad government. People who are not interested enough to go to the polls and cast a ballot are not justified in complaining if their government is unsatisfactory. After all, government, local, state and national, is just as good as the people make it with their votes or it just as rotten as their indifference permits it to be.

According to a Carnegie Institution scientist, the interior of the earth "is not as hot as Hades." Instead of being 36,000 degrees Fahrenheit, as heretofore estimated, he figures the temperature of the earth's core is only about 3990 degrees Fahrenheit. Nobody knows and it really doesn't make any difference. Even a temperature of 3990 degrees would be hot enough to make any place too hot for anybody on this earth.

Germans, visiting the United States this year, will only be permitted to spend a maximum of $266 for a 16-day visit. That is all the money their government will allow them to take out of Germany and 16 days is as long as they can stay in the United States without special permission from the Nazi government.

Furthermore, Nazi regulations prescribe HOW most of this money shall be spent. The German government sells the tourist coupons good for $200 worth of travel and living expenses and allows him to start out with only $56 cash when he reaches our shores.

That is a sample of governmental "planning" which will not appeal to American citizens.

Lucky for England that the United States does not put a $256 limit or any other limit on what American tourists can spend abroad. With such a restriction, the Coronation would be a financial flop.

Dorothy Kilgallen, International News Service correspondent, reports that swarms of Americans are showering money down upon London as though it were confetti.

The new constitution, declaring all Ireland a "sovereign and independent democratic state," which President De Valera will submit to a vote of the Irish people, has one novel provision. It declares "no law shall be enacted providing for the grant of a dissolution of marriage." If Ireland can abolish divorce, it will succed where many other nations have failed.

A Tennessee mountaineer who went without food for 52 days because he said "the Lord" told him to quit eating, broke his fast when he claimed "the Lord told me to take a little wine for my stomach's sake" and then to take some orange juice.

Several weeks ago, in Denver, an elderly Negro relief client killed three welfare workers because he said "God" told him to shoot them.

So far as we know, man is the only animal who is egotistical enough to think that the Almighty has time to tell individuals what to do

Rediscovering America

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

That secretly built exposition of the Germans, made to outshine and outdraw the widely publicized French fair, is another of many reminders of feverish competition of European nations for American tourists and American money.

Edwin C. Hill

Before the depression, and in its earlier years, we sluiced a steady golden flow through their hotels, ticket offices, and couturier cash registers. They called us Shylocks, but they let no random centime, lira, mark or shilling escape.

In all close financial accounting, this annual outpouring of tourist money weighed heavily in redressing European trade balances. This, and the steady tide of money from foreign-born workers in America, sent back home. Both golden streams "ebbed and sank and saddened." Europe turned to showmanship.

Travel has been increasing, but currency uncertainties, constantly impending shifts and juggling of values against the dollar yardstick, once more slow the east-bound traffic; particularly, for Americans who might spend considerable time in Europe.

Europe isn't the easy money paradise it used to be. The expatriates are coming home in flocks. Thousands, within the last 20 or 30 years, have made their permanent homes in Paris or London or Southern France. Since the days of James Hazen Hyde, who, irked by the investigation of his $100,000 dinner at Sherry's on an insurance company expense account, became a Parisian boulevardier, Europe has been the Elysium of many citizens of the upper social brackets who found our rough-and-tumble democracy a bit too crude for their liking.

GLAD TO BE HOME

Today Mr. Hyde, old Berry Wall and a few other old-timers hang on, but the truth is that the expatriates are re-discovering America in multitudes. Not alone because of the exchange, but because of the vast and disturbing political turmoil of the Continent, the unease and danger over there and a new appreciation of much in America that they previously had taken for granted—intellectual and political freedom, self-contained security and a stimulating culture of our own for any one intelligent enough to understand and appreciate it.

There is another group of returning expatriates—the Cafe Dome and Cafe Rotonde exiles of Paris who left with angry outcries against the American Philistines in the 1920's. They wore velvet jackets, gestured with their thumbs and wrote dada-istic poetry and execrated America—for awhile. Now they are back, chastened and older for their apostasy, and are hymning America and all things American. There have been at least a dozen such books within the last year or two.

Again, it isn't altogether money. While these lads and lassies, genuinely clever young people, many of them, have been engaging in learned disputations along Montparnasse and Raspail and the Boul Mich, some stick-in-the-mud young Americans have been "applying the seat of the pants to the seat of the chair"—Mary Vorse's formula for literary success—and we have right here and now something comparable to an Elizabethan renaissance all our own.

NEW LIFE EVIDENT

I doubt if Maxwell Anderson, whose outburst of drama is nothing short of Vesuvian, ever went to Europe. If he did, he didn't stay long. Right in his front yard, and a way down Route 9W, he found the makings of "High Tor," a play as authentic and searchingly profound and moving as anything of Sophocles or Aeschylus or Racine.

John Steinbeck just ambled around Monterey, and here we have "Tortilla Flat" and "Of Mice and Men"—salty, original, workmanlike American books which are literature in any man's country. And Margaret Mitchell took the lore of the old South which lay within hand's reach and, with "Gone With the Wind," was caught up in a grand razzle-dazzle of justly merited fame.

It is the same story in criticism and essays, and particularly in biography—we have had a string of magnificent biographies. There is new sap and vitality not only in American letters, but in the graphic arts and architecture, and some of the expatriates have been wise enough to discover it and come home and get on the job.

This may sound like the rabid provincialism of the all-but-forgotten "Know Nothing" movement of the last century. That, of course, was the pig-headed nonsense, with its ignorant condemnation of everything foreign. Mark Twain's raffish ridicule of Europe was perhaps his least worthy writing. I am trying to steer into a mean where we can give Europe its due and still do our own stuff. It looks as if that has happening now.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

In broad daylight, in the heart of the oldest and most famous parts of New York, Greenwich Village, a highly respected, quiet, home-loving judge, a life-long resident of the district in which he lived, walks to the corner of his street one morning to wait for a bus to take him to court.

A man steps up behind him, stabs him three times in the back and walks away. Four persons see the attack and believe the man is a friend slapping the judge on the back. There isn't a clue.

The newspaper men say that if a dog bites a man it is not news, but if a man bites a dog that is news. This has been topped by three runaway lads from the Arkansas Boys' Industrial School who adopted the bloodhound that had been sent after them.

Maybe these boys had been reading Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion." Androcles, a pious Christian of the early days, once took a splinter out of a young lion's paw in the forest. Many years afterward Androcles was thrown into the lion arena in Rome to be chewed up. The lion which had been chosen to make a meal of good Androcles took one look at him, recognized him, wagged his tail and shook hands with him.

Before all the great astronomers of America the tube of the largest and most powerful telescope in the world, to be equipped with a 200-inch mirror, had the last bolt hammered into it in Philadelphia.

The telescope will be set up on Mt. Palomra, Cal. Through its lens you may look ONE MILLION LIGHT years into space.

As light travels at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, you must, if you care to grasp what this means, calculate how many seconds there are in a million years and then multiply the result by 186,000. That will tell you how many miles you can see if it is ever your privilege to look through this telescope.

The ancients studied the heavens, but they had no telescopes. Man's magic third eye was discovered about 1608—and, like steam, the law of gravitation and the Roentgen ray, purely by accident.

One day Hans Lippershey, of Middleburg, Holland, a spectacle maker, went to an open window to examine a lens he was making. He was astonished to find that the neighboring church spire when seen through the lens was larger than normally. He fitted the lens to a tube—and that was the first telescope.

What will be seen through the new Mt. Palomar telescope will be sublimely mysterious. But at the business end of the instrument will be something still more sublimely mysterious—the MIND OF MAN.

Yale, the University of Pennsylvania and Princeton, following the lead of Oxford University in England, refuse to participate in the anniversary celebration of Goettingen University in Germany.

The reasons given for these refusals are the burning of the books at the beginning of the Hitler regime, the restrictions on the freedom of teaching and research and the fact that the celebration takes place on the anniversary of "The Purge," June 30.

No regime—such as prevails in Germany and Russia—that talks such rubbish as "Nazi Science," "Non-Jewish Music," Marxist Art" and "Aryan Biology" can command the respect of those educational institutions in free democracies where science, music, literature and the arts are expressions of INDIVIDUAL VISION.
